ALLIES CUT LIFE LINE TO LAE, SALAMAUA, LAND MIGHTY FORCE ON HUON GULF COAST

Commandos Clamp Vise on Tip of 'Toe'; Allies Bag 40 Towns, 2,000 Prisoners

Bagnara Falls; Monty Plunges Further Inland

By EDWARD KENNEDY.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Allied forces throwing Commando, claw-like pincers over the top of the Italian toe have seized Bagnara, clamped a firm hold on a 40-mile invasion arc from Melito to Bagnara, and taken more than 2,000 prisoners.

At least 40 coastal and inland towns and villages have been taken by Allied troops.

Repeating the highly-successful American landing jumps along the Sicilian north coast, a big Commando force captured Bagnara 10 miles northeast of San Giovanni, and was joined by infantrymen speeding up the shores against still-feeble enemy resistance, Allied headquarters announced today.

Other Commandos landed at Melito, rounding the southern edge of the toe 15 miles below Reggio Calabria, but found that road junction already evacuated by the Italians.

Under personal leadership of dashing Eighth Army General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, British and Canadian troops in the third day of invasion were fanning in both directions along the coast and plunging deeper inland on the toe, where the Axis might elect to stand in natural mountainous defenses.

Near Palmi.

An Algiers broadcast recorded in London by the Associated Press said Allied troops were on the outskirts of Palmi, five miles beyond Bagnara.

Italian headquarters reported Allied armored units were knifing inland, and that "violent fighting is in progress in the area east of Bagnara and on the slopes of the Aspromonte (Bitter) mountains" inside the lower toe.

"Between Palmi and Bagnara, the defending forces after having thrown the first British contingent back into the sea, had to withdraw from Bagnara," the Italian communique said.

The tremendous drubbing of Italian railroads by air attack has knocked out their usefulness to the Germans in any effort to rush large reinforcement armies into southern or central Italy, Allied headquarters announced. Reconnaissance showed the terrible destruction of rail routes exceeded previous reports.

U. S. Flying Fortresses and long-range P-38 Lightnings heaped fresh destruction on airfields, railroads and highways in the Naples area yesterday and were followed up last night by British Wellingtons, while RAF heavy bombers from the Middle East battered the Grottaglie airdrome near Taranto Friday night.

Smash Assault.

Other fleets of Allied planes smashed at enemy positions ahead of invasion troops, and broke up the first Italian attempt to harry the Allied ground troops, knocking down eight out of a force of 20 fighter-bombers. Many more were damaged.

The Italians, mostly Macchis, jettisoned their bombs and fled with the Spitfires pursuing in a battle "among the ravines and valleys and very close to the ground."

First Photograph of Allied Invasion on Italian Mainland

American-made seagoing trucks, known to the Army as amphibious ducks, are shown moving British troops inland north of Reggio Calabria, on the toe of the Italian peninsula. This first picture of the invasion was radioed from Algiers to London and retransmitted to New York, thence to Atlanta by wire last night. Hundreds of these unbelievable vehicles are shuttling with men and supplies between Sicily and mainland.

De Luce Says Single Battalion Could Have Taken 'Toe' of Italy

(Associated Press War Correspondent Daniel De Luce was one of the last correspondents to leave Greece when the Germans drove out the British Expeditionary Force in the spring of 1941, and now is one of the first reporters to accompany the British invading the continent of Europe through Italy. A veteran of four years of war, he covered the invasion of Poland, and Stilwell's withdrawal from Burma.)

By DANIEL DE LUCE.

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 4.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Astoundingly weak defenses on the foot of Italy permitted British Eighth Army scouts to thrust beyond the invasion bridgehead on Messina strait today without encountering more than stray machinegun fire or a few badly aimed shells.

The British stopped shelling the cape yesterday when civilians waved white flags from the shore.

The approach along the north coast to Scilla, fabled habitat of irresistible sirens, was defended at last reports by little more than one machinegun which Eighth Army veterans were capable of dealing with in short order.

As yet the Eighth Army has encountered no enemy demolitions of highway bridges and other vital facilities, nor has the enemy laid mines to cover his retreat.

The British movement across the straits was carried out so swiftly and untroubled by more than a flicker or two of enemy air action that this correspondent, who was left out of the assault party, was able to get his motor transport into Italy well ahead of schedule nevertheless.

Two German prisoners were captured in all operations in Italy yesterday.

Three German graves were found in the Reggio Calabria with crosses dated September 1, 1943. They apparently were killed by an artillery barrage from across the strait or by an air raid.

Officially it is stated that "services are normal" in this war-wrecked city. That will be good news to the inhabitants, many of whom are still out in the countryside. There is water at community water fountains, but hardly one store has opened. A great majority of the houses are badly damaged.

Even this early, censorship may permit general observations on the weakness of the enemy revealed by the invasion of Italy.

The German air force is a feeble shadow of itself, incapable of defending the extremities of the continent because of the need to keep fighters for the defense of inland centers.

The Germans are very short of bombers for any form of counteroffensive in the air.

The Italians are fighting even less well in Italy than in Sicily. The vast majority are happy to surrender without resistance.

Italian civilians are anxious to ingratiate themselves with the Allies and the police put themselves immediately at the disposition of Allied military commanders.

The tremendous artillery barrage, big naval support and heavy assault force sent across the strait yesterday by General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery was like an elephant stepping on a gnat.

One battalion might have done the job of seizing the coast from San Giovanni to Reggio Calabria, but the gigantic softening up process did save Allied lives and must have impressed the retiring Axis divisions.

(The remainder of this dispatch was dated September 3, and sent from Reggio Calabria in Italy).

Hundreds of Italian soldiers who surrendered without a fight marched smilingly toward Sicily today as the vanguard of General Montgomery's British Eighth Army rushed onward in pursuit of demolition gangs of retreating Axis forces.

Today's invasion of the European mainland was a growing omen of doom for Hitler's Reich and was in all important phases a ridiculously easy walkover.

The landing in Italy was literally easier and safer than some of the tough experiences which the Canadian and British troops under-

Reds Take 1,500 Towns In Week, Peril Stalino

By W. W. HERCHER.

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 6.—(AP) Russia's Donets basin army captured the mining city of Artemovsk yesterday after killing or routing its German garrison in bitter street fighting and also retook 120 other localities in smashing nine-mile advances that put Red artillery only 15 miles from the big Axis base of Stalino, the Russians said today.

Stalino was reported in flames, an indication that the Germans were burning it and destroying installations before abandoning that city, which had served as their southern headquarters.

Captured Artemovsk is 42 miles north of Stalino.

General Rodion Malinovsky's troops first broke into the "stubbornly defended" city lying on the inner German rail network Saturday night after capturing points on the north and south, said a Moscow broadcast communique recorded here by the Soviet monitor. The Germans "had created large expanses of minefields and anti-tank obstacles at the approaches," it added.

In the swirling street battle that followed, some Axis troops surrendered and others fled after suffering "heavy losses," Moscow said.

One Russian group, presumably the one converging on Stalino to the south, killed 2,000 Germans during the day, and the communique said a total of 8,400 enemy troops were slain, and scores of tanks, planes and guns were destroyed or captured on all fronts.

Advances of four to nine miles were hammered out on the Konotop, Bryansk, and Smolensk fronts as the huge Russian military machine ground on westward through more than 250 villages to boost the Red army's total bag to 1,500 localities rewon in the last week.

"A very important center of resistance," which may be Baltutino, only 35 miles southeast of Smolensk, was captured on the central front, where the Russians said the Germans "tried of all costs to stem the advance of our troops."

The communique also announced the seizure of Khutor-Mikhaylovsky, rail junction 85 miles south of Bryansk. The fall of this town and others gave the Red army a 70-mile-long grip on the Bryansk-Kiev artery above Konotop, northern Ukraine citadel which is menaced by Russian units attacking only 14 miles from the city.

ACTRESS REMARRIES.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Screen Actress Jean Rogers disclosed today that she and her former husband, Danny Winkler, actor's agent, were married again last July 3 by a justice of the peace in Ventura, Cal.

LINE WASN'T BUSY—Major General Charles H. Corlett, one of the leaders of the U. S. Army invasion forces, is shown with a Jap hand telephone set left behind when the Nips evacuated Kiska Island. The Army has disproved the myth that the Japs won't retreat, and last night researchers announced the opinion that the Nips at home could be expected to crack up when they realize what's ahead for them at the hands of the Allies.

Japanese CAN Crack, Researchers Claim

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6—(AP)—The Foreign Policy Association says "Japan may crack" internally when her people and soldiers finally realize they are being herded down the road to their first national defeat.

The association, a privately-funded research group, incorporated these observations today into a study of Japanese history, economics and psychology:

"It seems unwise and unhistorical to assume that the morale of the Japanese is unbreakable, unless we believe that they are fundamentally different from all other peoples and, even under the severest strain, are not subject to the common patterns of human behavior.

"The unwillingness so far of any significant number of Japanese to surrender on the battlefield is the result of several concrete conditions: Powerful indoctrination against surrender, Japan's succession of victories over a period of years, and the fact that recent fighting in the Southwest Pacific and the Aleutians has involved not mass armies but comparatively small bodies of men. If large Japanese armies—not picked troops—suffer major defeats, the old imperatives are likely to lose force, especially since in the later stages of the war man power will be drawn increasingly from sources that are inferior both in physical stamina and indoctrination. . . .

"Japan has never fought a war on the present scale—all its previous wars were against single, relatively weak opponents like Manchu China and Tsarist Russia—nor has it ever been beaten. . . .

"What will the situation be after Tokyo and other cities have endured mass bombings and after Japan's forces have been steadily pressed back by superior arms? Quite possibly the war years that lie ahead will be more important in shaping the future mentality of Japan than the country's longer past of officially promoted loyalty and superstition."

Elaborate Burial Held for Boris III

By The Associated Press.

King Boris III of Bulgaria was buried Sunday after elaborate funeral services in Alexander Nevsky cathedral in Sofia attended by high German officials and members of the royal family, a German broadcast said.

The Germans supplied a guard of honor and a naval band, and detachments of other Axis troops stood guard as the body of the monarch was taken on a gun carriage to the railway station for transportation to the monastery at St. Ivan Rilski in the Rila mountains for burial, said the broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press.

Gen. MacArthur In New Guinea To Spur Attack

By VERN HAUGLAND.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Monday, Sept. 6—(AP)—A powerful Allied force, comprised mainly of Australian troops, has landed on the coast of Huon gulf east of Lae, New Guinea, isolating the Lae-Salamaua area from supply bases up the coast.

"The investment of Lae has begun," said General Douglas MacArthur, who is in New Guinea in personal command of operations.

Striking with paralyzing force, the Allied troops stormed ashore under cover of a smoke screen Saturday morning, after naval forces had prepared the way with a heavy bombardment. The Japanese apparently were caught unawares.

"In a co-ordinated ground, air and naval operation, our troops, in heavy force, have successfully landed on the coast northeast of Lae, cutting the enemy's line of communication to Finschhafen and the north coast of New Guinea," a communique said.

"The movement was a complete surprise and the landing was made with little opposition. . . . The movement to invest and isolate the Lae-Salamaua area is now under way."

Lae is one of the principal Japanese bases in central New Guinea. It lies about 15 miles northwest of Salamaua, where American and Australian troops gradually have been closing in on a strategic enemy airdrome.

Six hours after the successful landing, the Allied protective air cover intercepted and dispersed an enemy formation of medium and dive bombers, escorted by 35 fighters.

There were few Allied casualties in the landing itself, but the Japanese air raid damaged two small Allied boats and caused some casualties.

The landing troops were under the direction of General Sir Thomas Blamey, an Australian. Vice Admiral Carpender commanded the naval forces and Lieutenant General George C. Kenny directed the air forces.

War Summary

By The Associated Press.

NEW GUINEA—Allied troops land "in force" on coast of Huon gulf, east of Lae, one of principal strongholds of Japanese, approximately 15 miles northeast of Salamaua, striking new land blow for central New Guinea.

ITALY—Allied invasion forces forge steadily ahead in conquest of Italian toe, taking territory from Bagnara to Melito; bombers strike new blows in south and Naples, further disrupting communications; war-weary Italians through Rome radio make pleas for peace.

WESTERN EUROPE—Devastation continued in attacks by United States and British bombers on Belgian rail yards and airfields in Holland; RAF Mosquitoes blast Ruhr and Rhineland by night. Story on page 11.

RUSSIA—Red Army reports new gains in Donets basin, seizing a rail junction 85 miles south of Bryansk to regain control of 55-mile stretch of railway between Bryansk and Kiev; also recapture 250 villages and towns in gains on Smolensk and Kharkov fronts.

'Sooner We Have Honorable Peace the Better,' Rome Moans

By LEWIS HAWKINS.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—While Allied troops bit deeper into the mainland of Italy, the Italians continued their indirect peace pleas today in a gloomy Rome radio broadcast which said the "sooner we have an honorable peace the better."

This English language broadcast, heard by the ministry of information, came from a closely controlled station in the Italian capital and obviously was a fully authorized attempt to arouse British and American sympathies.

The Algiers radio broadcast a report, unconfirmed from any other source, that the Italian fleet had abandoned its Taranto base, presumably to withdraw into the Adriatic—a move which would not surprise British navy men, since the base lies only about 175 miles from the present fighting front.

The Italian communique was less optimistic in tone than that portion of the German communique devoted to the fighting on the Calabrian front. The latter, broadcast by the Berlin radio, and recorded by the Associated Press, said in part:

"British forces which landed on the Calabrian peninsula could widen their bridgehead yesterday only very little, although they were opposed by only weak German and Italian forces."

The Italian communique declared that the Allied forces "supported by large air formations intensified the flow of troops and armored units" and penetrated further inland, occupying several populated places.

White Flags on Italian 'Toe' Like Nursery on Wash Day

By PAUL KERN LEE.

ABOARD THE BRITISH DESTROYER QUAIL IN MESSINA STRAIT, Sept. 3.—(Delayed)—(AP)—It looked like washday in a public nursery.

Italian white flags began to blossom along the shore with the first light of day as the Allies began their invasion. Before noon the whole of the Italian tiptoe area flapped with white banners in unbelievable profusion.

As our destroyer sped up to within a half mile of Reggio Calabria, white sheets flapped like mad from nearly every roof and men, women and children frantically waved white handkerchiefs.

And as we sailed northward, close inshore, we passed hundreds of civilians waving white flags.

This destroyer and a sister ship, the Quilliam, were the first Allied warships to pass through the strait. We drew only one shot from an enemy coastal battery.

The landings—made by the Canadian First and British Fifth divisions at 4:30 a. m.—9:30 p. m. Atlanta time—were preceded by one of the most concentrated artillery barrages of the war. More than 900 big guns, lined literally hub to hub on the Sicilian beaches, smashed the invasion beaches to nothingness. In the north, where the strait is less than two miles wide, even machineguns were used.

Within four hours both Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni, as well as many other points on the 10-mile stretch between, were waving the white banners of surrender.

The British and Canadians pushed steadily inland, capturing fixed batteries and encountering no real opposition until about 10 o'clock when inland guns began shelling the strait sporadically at its narrowest point.

Promptly at 3:40 a. m., hell on a huge scale broke loose from Sicily. Little guns, medium guns and big guns lighted up the whole coast with brilliant orange, white and pink flashes.

Almost immediately fires broke out on the Italian side.

We pressed near until the big guns were firing over our heads.

This destroyer soon met swarms of assault landing craft, moving steadily toward Italy like automobiles on a pre-war Sunday afternoon on an American parkway.

British, Greeks Hold Parley Deep in Enemy-Held Balkans

By ERNEST AGNEW.

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 6.—(AP)—In one of the most audacious acts of the war, British and Greek staff officers from Cairo have traveled hundreds of miles through enemy-held territory for a secret rendezvous at Balkan headquarter sof Greek guerrillas.

There, it was disclosed today, they conferred with 600 leaders representing more than 50,000 Greek patriots and effected a united command for an underground fight against the Axis.

The conference established a long-term policy to fit in with the Allied Middle East command's plans for intensification of sabotage in the Axis-occupied Balkan country.

According to reports reaching here, they also perfected methods to assure arms and other equipment to the guerrillas.

The conference lasted three days and then the staff officers returned to Cairo by the same secret route used for entry.

Germany has talked of British planes using secret airfields in Greece and of submarine contacts along various parts of the coast. Supplies, including arms, technical equipment, radios, medicine and some food reportedly have been landed.

Some British, Australian and New Zealand soldiers are fighting with the guerrillas in the Balkans, it is reported here. Left behind when Greece was overrun in April, 1941, they took to the mountains and linked up with the native patriots. Some still are wearing the remnants of their old uniforms.

Allied governments have estimated that there are about 150,000 guerrillas throughout the Balkans now actively fighting the Axis and have said that at least twice that number would join when and if they are equipped with arms.

Reds Chasing Nazis on 600-Mile Front Skeptical of Invasion Aid

By HENRY C. CASSIDY.

WITH THE RED ARMY ON THE STEPPE FRONT, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Soldiers of the Red Army, crashing forward on the heels of the retreating Germans along a 600-mile front, attribute their clean-cut victory to their own power and not to Allied operations in the west.

When we heard the news of the Allied landing in Italy, a Red Army man asked me:

"Is it a land front?"

They preferred to wait and see how much strength the Italian invasion would draw from the German armies along the Soviet front before deciding whether this was the Russian idea of a second front.

Hitler's beaten armies falling back to the Dienper and Desna rivers are leaving blackened scenes of devastation resembling an area scourged by locusts.

But they are also leaving behind heaps of their own material and mounds of their own men at points where the Red Army is cutting them off and wiping them out by a series of pincer movements.

American material is aiding the Red Army in its victorious drive.

West of Kharkov, while guns boomed on a nearby front and planes flew overhead, British and American correspondents visiting this front saw the battlefield where the Red Army had cut off and smashed the remnants of the German Third Tank Division to cross the Merefa river and occupy the railroad station of Merefa, 15 miles southwest of Kharkov.

Here in the cabbage patches and orchards of a collective farm the Red army intercepted 100 German tanks and mobile guns including Mark six and Mark four tanks and giant "Ferdinand" guns, and wrecked 60 of them and dispersed the others.

Lieutenant Colonel Georgy Timofeovich Kushnifov of the Russian tank army said the Germans had concentrated a strong group here including an S. S. tank division for a counterattack against Kharkov.

The Russians broke through from the north, crossed the Udi river on August 29 and forced the enemy into battle on a farm seven miles northwest of Merefa.

Fighting at a range of 800 yards to a mile, the Russian tanks riddled the enemy machines.

A Mark six Tiger, a 60-ton tank with a 75-millimeter gun, had its treads shattered and its turret blasted by Russian gunfire. The wreckage of several Mark-4s littered the field where they were broken and burned.

The skeletons of the crews still remained in some of them.

Danish Saboteurs Continue Damage

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Germany, with Denmark under Nazi military dictatorship for a week, has failed to halt sabotage against German war production, communication and transport facilities, the free Danish Press Bureau reported today.

Nazi General Hermann von Hannecken took over the Danish government last Sunday in an effort to put an end to sabotage and violent resistance to German occupation.

During the past three days saboteurs have damaged a train carrying German supplies, the Roskilde power station, Frederiksberg telephone conduits and one channel bridge. The Germans relaxed the martial law curfew on Friday but rescinded the action because of the continuation of the sabotage.

The Danes expect the Germans to continue efforts this week to establish a government of Danes in order to relieve the Nazis of all except control over police and justice matters.

Aircraft Production in England Is as Good as Ours, Says McGill

The Constitution's Marietta News Bureau

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 5.—Ralph McGill, editor of The Constitution, toured the the Bell bomber plant at Marietta last week, with company and military officials. Questioned about the aircraft industry in England, where he recently visited, he wrote an article to the Bell employes, which was featured in the weekly Bell Aircraft News. The article follows:

Every time I asked a question about the Bell plant someone asked me one about one of the English plants.

So, at last I said, lead me to a typewriter and I will try to put down a few of the answers. Hence—

England is doing a good job. She had to do one to stick in the war. Her aircraft plants impressed me most favorably. They are, I am sure, as good as ours in production results. In other British industries I could see their methods seemed slower. But not in aircraft, or rather not in the Spitfire or Lancaster plants. There the work moved on a line.

They are working more women than we. I got a kick out of seeing some of the girls doing dance steps at their machines. In Birmingham I asked one girl, who had started a long strip of metal through a machine, if she wasn't doing a jitterbug step.

"I am," she said, giving me a grin.

"Who taught you?" I asked.

"Yankee Doodle," she said, flashing me another grin as she started in another strip of metal.

The American soldiers certainly are adding to the cultural and artistic life of England.

What about share the rides in England?

Swell, if you have a bicycle built for two or three or four.

There isn't any gas. You see one small car (Austin type) at a huge factory. But no more. What you do see is thousands of bicycles.

They work 52 and 60 hours per week and then ride home on those bikes. There are hills over there, too.

Bombings Go On.

In most every factory there are men and women who worked all through the blitz days and saw factories blown up and some of their friends killed. They still work with that threat over them. The enemy is just over there, never more than 30 minutes away.

Are the blitz days over?

Well, there isn't a week that several persons aren't killed by enemy bombs. In July 167 persons were killed and 265 wounded by German bombs. That is about the monthly average. Some towns—such as Hull and Dover—get attacks each week. Sometimes they get three or four.

Highballs—$1 Each.

There is no gas at all for civilians and there isn't much meat—six ounces a week. A highball, American size, costs $1 each and a glass of beer is 30 cents. The tax on movies is relatively the price of admission, usually a bit more. If your movie costs 40 cents it would be about 90 cents in England.

They work hard. They are a little tired because they have been in this war four years. But their hopes are higher and their spirits better than ever before. The women run baggage trucks at railway stations, work on trains, buses, farms.

Some of us don't get along with the English. I guess it's because they are kin to us. Kinfolks always quarrel. But you've got to take off your hat to them. They are in the war—everyone of them. And they have their chins up.

Big Inch Extension Rips, Starts Fire

LANSDALE, Pa., Sept. 5—(AP)—An extension of the "big inch" pipe line, leading from Phoenixville, Pa., to Bayonne, N. J., broke for the fifth time today, and a resultant oil fire on the surface of Skippack creek destroyed more than 100 trees.

Firemen from six towns erected two earth dams to impound the oil which flowed into the creek and then extinguished the blaze with chemicals.

Because the line was temporarily out of service a greater loss of oil was prevented.

Japs Report Philippine Okay of Constitution

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The Japanese radio asserted today that a "draft of the constitution of the Philippines" had been approved and signed by the "Philippine Independence Preparatory Commission" at Manila.

An amplified report of the signing ceremony, recorded by U. S. government monitors, quoted Jose Laurel, president of the commission, as hailing the draft as "the best and most convincing evidence that Japan is determined to liberate the Filipino people."

Record Radio Appeal For 3d War Loan Drive

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's 10-minute radio address Wednesday night opening the $15,000,000,000 third war loan will inaugurate what the Treasury described tonight as the most ambitious undertaking in radio annals.

A series of 396 special network programs devoted to the huge finance effort have been scheduled during the 22 days of the drive in addition to more than 800 local programs throughout the country and 3,800 special announcements. Mr. Roosevelt will speak about 8:40 p. m. (Atlanta time).

Youthful Hero To Help Launch Bond Campaign

One of the youthful heroes coming to Atlanta Wednesday to launch the third war loan drive at the mammoth war bond premiere at Loew's Grand theater at 8 p. m. is Ensign Thomas P. Leonard of the United States Merchant Marine, who, in his 22 years has seen enough excitement and has survived enough hardship to last the average man a lifetime.

On teh morning of January 23 the S. S. Benjamin Smith, freighter carrying munitions to American fighting men in Africa, was steaming unescorted through the lonely waters off Africa's Ivory coast when a German torpedo tore through the ship. As Ensign Leonard and his mates fought to bring her under control another blast blew the freighter out of the water. Leonard found himself struggling in the ocean, finally making his way to one of the three lifeboats in which 67 men had found refuge.

Nursed by Natives.

The boats made landfall on the African coast, 60 miles away, and natives fed the sailors fruit, gave them water, and later nursed them when every man came down with malaria. Word of their plight reached U. S. authorities and Army trucks were sent to haul them to an airport. They flew home by clipper. It was Ensign Leonard's first voyage.

His second was as hazardous. This time, 15 miles off Capetown, on May 28, the S. S. Agwimonte, also loaded with munitions, was blown up under him. In boats and life rafts 66 men made their way to safety at Capetown.

After Ensign Leonard completes the war bond tour which brings him to Atlanta and other cities throughout the south, he goes to sea again.

Personal Appearance.

Leonard and his fellow heroes will make a personal appearance Wednesday night at Loew's Grand and at the southern premiere of "Salute to the Marines," a story of the Leathernecks starring Wallace Beery.

The pick of the fighting men of all the services, the heroes, beside Leonard, are Raymond S. White, Coast Guard; Lester Eugene Scarboro, Navy; Sergeant Carl T. Hickman, Marines; Sergeant Vincent E. Boothe, Army, and Lieutenant John Lucas, Army Air Forces.

Also to appear on the premiere program are two of Hollywood's brightest young stars, Shirley Patterson and Lynn Carver, who will serve as mistresses of ceremonies in presenting the fighting men.

To Arrive by Plane.

The group will arrive in Atlanta by plane Wednesday afternoon, and will be brought from the airport behind a parade of bands and military equipment for a brief program in front of Loew's before going on to the Biltmore hotel, where they will be guests of the management for their two-day stay here.

Tickets to the premiere may be obtained now at either the Fox or Grand theaters, by purchase at the theater booths of a war bond of any denomination from $18.75 up. No seats are reserved, and only 2,000 tickets will be sold.

The premiere marks the beginning of the third war loan drive in Georgia under the direction of Charles A. Stair, state chairman of the War Finance Committee. Charles Currie heads the Fulton-DeKalb county drive to raise $65,000,000 of the $167,000,000 state quota.

Eritrea Veteran Heads Unit At Ordnance Plant

A veteran of 18 months in Africa recently assumed command of the First School Battalion at the Atlanta Ordnance depot. He is Lieutenant Colonel Alvis B. Duke, 35-year-old Texan and former commanding officer of Asmara arsenal in Eritrea.

Colonel Duke

Asmara arsenal is a gigantic establishment built by the Italians several years before the Ethiopian war and operated by the British for a short time after they chased the Italians out of Italian East Africa, then by the United States Army. It supplied the British Eighth Army and the United States Ninth Air Force with ordnance and other equipment.

Employed Tact.

The employes of this American military-industrial installation were mostly the same Italian civilians who worked there for Mussolini in the prewar days of preparation, but there were also Greeks, Rumanians, Polish, Hungarians, French, Czechs, Indians and natives. By the use of tact and fair labor relations Colonel Duke kept Allied and Axis citizens working together for Uncle Sam with incredibly little friction.

"Asmara was an excellent example of Italy's long-term preparation for war in Africa," Colonel Duke said yesterday at the Atlantic Ordnance depot. "Nobody would build an establishment like that in a place like Asmara merely for colonization purposes or even to support a campaign against the Ethiopian tribesmen. Mussolini was preparing for large scale military operations in Africa when he built Asmara, and that was as early as 1935."

Transferred to Tripoli.

As Allied successes carried the war further north in Africa, Asmara arsenal lost some of its importance, and it was closed. Duke was transferred to the Libyan Service Command headquarters in Tripoli. As ordnance officer of this service command he was in Tunisia during the bitterest fighting there.

He went to Africa in December, 1941, with the United States military mission to North Africa, proceeding directly to British headquarters in Cairo. This mission was organized to advise the British on the maintenance and operation of American lend-lease equipment and also to observe the performance and combat capabilities of this material. Duke was assigned to the mission because he was one of the ordnance department's leading experts on the General Grant tanks which were at that time the latest model.

Julian Mack, Retired U. S. Circuit Judge, Dies

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—(AP)—Julian William Mack, 77, retired judge of the United States circuit court and honorary president of the World Jewish Congress, died today at the Fifth Avenue hotel following a long illness.

After serving there as a civil service commissioner, Judge Mack began his career as a jurist in Chicago in 1903 when he was elected to the circuit court of Cook county, Illinois. He was appointed a United States circuit judge in 1911, and he retired from the federal bench in September, 1941.

U. S. Bombers Open New Attack On Outskirts of East Indies

NEW DELHI, Sept. 5 — (AP) — American Liberator bombers, winging almost 1,000 miles into the Indian ocean, have opened a new western aerial offensive against the approaches to the Japanese-occupied, rubber-rich Netherlands East Indies, a Tenth U. S. Air Force headquarters communique disclosed today.

The raid, carried out Friday without loss against military installations on Car Nicobar Island, 200 miles northwest of Sumatra, was the first Allied blow from the west against the westernmost outposts of Japan's rich military conquests since the East Indies fell to the invaders early in 1942.

American aerial might thus was launched against Japan, as decided at the Churchill-Roosevelt Quebec conferences even before the arrival in this theater of the new Allied commander-in-chief in southeast Asia, Vice Admiral Louis Mountbatte

The number of the big, four-engined craft participating in the 2,000-mile raid was not specified, but the communique said that "excellent results were reported." Direct hits were scored on docks and installations and near hits on a 100-foot barge.

The blow from the west brings Allied pressure against the Indies from the west as well as the east, where General Douglas MacArthur's southwest Pacific air forces have been making forays into the Celebes, Borneo and Java.

On the same day American P-40 fighter planes, sweeping over Japanese-occupied Burma, strafed shipping on the northern Irrawaddy river, and B-25 medium bombers followed up the attacks the following day by assaults on the railway yards at Mandalay.

RAF Beaufighters and Wellingtons, also slashing at Japanese positions in Burma, yesterday damaged the railway line between Henzada and Bassein, water storage tanks and a factory at Neikban, factories at Kamauka, Natmaw and Danbi, and bombed targets at Gwa and Sandoway, a British communique said.

R. L. McKee Killed In Plane Crash

Mrs. David McKee, of 543 Parkway drive, said last night she has been informed of the death of her grandson, Ensign Robert L. McKee, a native Atlantan, who was killed a week ago in a California plane crash.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. McKee, of Ardmore, Pa., and a requiem mass will be held at Sacred Heart church here at 9:15 a. m. tomorrow.

Besides the parents and the grandmother, Ensign McKee is survived by an aunt, Miss Margaret McKee, of the Parkway address.

His father was formerly a well-known mechanical engineer in Atlanta. The family has been living in Pennsylvania for a number of years.

Invasion

one British pilot said. One Spitfire was lost.

Elsewhere over the invasion area there was only the weakest kind of air opposition and little Axis ground movememnt.

Aground, casualties thus far have been light on both sides.

But the enemy resorted to extensive demolitions before withdrawing, and these are slowing the advance along both the north and south coastal roads. So far no mines have been found.

Germany has no large troop will not try to make a major stand in Calabria, the Berlin-correspondent of Stockholm's Tidningen reported today.

He corroborated previous indications that the Nazi military chieftains were delaying employment of their full defensive strength until the pattern of the Allied invasion became clearer.

The campaign appears similar to that in Sicily in that the Axis plan apparently was to let the Allies land without heavy opposition, and then oppose them at points offering the best natural defenses.

Among villages occupied by columns sweeping up the coast road were San Gregorio, San Leo, Pellaro, Madonella, Lazzaro, Cannitello and Porto Salvo.

Melito, whose loss was announced by the Italians yesterday, is the southern terminal of a cross peninsular road.

A South African lieutenant, one of the first flyers to land at the Reggio Calabria airdrome, said, "Many Italians in full marching order came from the hills to surrender. Some were still armed."

The predominance of Italians among the prisoners indicated the Germans again were using them as rearguards to cover their own withdrawal, as they did repeatedly in Africa and Sicily.

Flying Fortresses hit Terracina, 60 miles northwest of Naples, in a "small raid" and the Lightnings attacked positions and vehicles aground at Grazzanise airfield, north of Naples, and destroyed seven motor vehicles, several training planes, power lines and a power station in swift stabs at near-by Sessa Arunca.

The night-flying Wellingtons concentrated on Grazzanise airfield, bombing the dispersal areas, and crewmen reported one explosion "more violent than any we have ever seen in Sicily or Tunisia."

In all yesterday, 12 enemy planes were destroyed during 24 hours of operations that cost six North African Air Force ships.

U. S. A-36 dive-bombers ranging over the toe of Italy hit all available targets, bombing a road junction and highway bridge and attacking 16 trucks.

(The Italian communique acknowledged "very heavy damage and many casualties" at Terracina, saying the populace was machinegunned.

(A Rome broadcast said the Allies lost 150 airplanes over Italy from August 25 to September 2.)

Associated Press Correspondent Daniel de Luce, who followed the first invasion troops, said the Italian defenses were "astoundingly weak" and that Italians were surrendering happily.

Holland Sees Atlanta Link In Air Chain

The Constitution's Marietta News Bureau

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 5.—Envisioning an immense postwar Pan-American air transportation business, of which the Atlanta area, with the Bell bomber plant nearing production, is a logical link, Governor Spessard L. Holland, of Florida, yesterday expressed a hope of great development from the plant in commercial aviation during peace time.

Calling Florida "just one big air field," Governor Holland is planning for an enormous freight and passenger terminal within six hours of the great eastern centers.

Conducted on a tour through the plant by company and military authorities last week, the Florida Governor was impressed with the progress made since ground was broken 17 months ago.

"From the looks of the buildings, there certainly seems to be an air of permanence about the place," he said.

Governor Holland crashed in an observation plane during World War I. He attended Emory University.

Bus-Auto Crash Near Austell Fatal To Two

Four persons, injured Saturday afternoon in a head-on automobile-bus collision between Douglasville and Austell, in which two men were instantly killed, yesterday were reported improving in hospitals at Villa Rica and Austell. Five other bus passengers were reported shaken up.

The injured were listed as Horace (Horry) Stallings, driver of the bus, who suffered a broken leg; Bruce Daniel, 18, of Atlanta, and M. O. McCaffey, of Carrollton, who were taken to the Austell hospital, and Robert Matthews, of Villa Rica, taken to the Villa Rica hospital.

State Patrol headquarters listed Joseph W. Lytle and Fred W. Pittman, both of Birmingham, Ala., as instantly killed in the crash.

The bus was bound from Carrollton, Ga., to Atlanta.

PONDS DRYING UP.

ALBANY, Ga., Sept. 5.—In a report made before the health board, Lannie Rouse, sanitary engineer, said that 75 per cent of Dougherty county's ponds are drying up from lack of rainfall, and that the loss in fish will be enormous unless rain in reasonable quantities comes soon. He stated that on the existing ponds, 2,332 pounds of dust was scattered during the past month.

Roxy Offers Snappy Bill; Lucas Sings

A snappy stage show, sparked by the comedy of a black-faced comedian, the dancing of the Dan Fitch Chorus, novelty of a comic cartoonist and the songs of America's ace troubadour, Nick Lucas, opened a week's engagement at the Roxy theater yesterday.

Guitarist-crooner Lucas proved one of the most popular artists of the current Fitch series. The audience responded generously to his musical offerings, which consisted of some of the oldies as well as several of the newer hit tunes. He answered three curtain calls and left the audience asking for more.

New Haverly, clever black-faced performer, shared the comedy spot with Moore and Berg, while Ernie McGee entertained the large opening day audience with some fancy cartoon sketching.

The Dan Fitch girls were featured in three new production numbers, the foremost of which was entitled "The Wooden Soldier." Miss Frances Lee, ballet dancer, did a nice bit of toe dancing in this offering. Another number which the audience liked was the "Indian" scene. The girls were garbed in native costumes which were very attractive. Miss Sandra Barnes, soprano, got a big hand for her featured part in this selection.

The screen offering is "The Alaska Highway," starring Jean Parker and Richard Arlen.

Churchill Will Make Radio Address Today

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill of Britain, who has been conferring with President Roosevelt since Wednesday, will make a brief radio address tomorrow.

The White House said last night that the address will be part of a program beginning at noon (EWT) in an unidentified American city and that it is not expected to be "of special political significance."

Widow of Haggard, Famed Novelist, Dies

NORFOLK, England, Sept. 5—(AP)—Lady Haggard, 83, widow of Sir Henry Rider Haggard, English novelist, died at her home yesterday.

Among Sir Henry's principal works were "King Solomon's Mines," "Montezuma's Daughters" and "She," based on first-hand observation in Africa where he went at 19 as secretary to the governor of Natal. He died in 1925.

'Chutist Lands 'Chuteless--- On Park Ride

Paratrooper William R. O. Keefe went sailing through the air without his parachute yesterday at Lakewood park, landed with a thud on top of an automobile, and calmly walked away after being revived by astounded spectators—all because he wanted to improvise a more thrilling method of enjoying one of the riding devices at the park.

Patrolman Bob Tuxworth said Keefe, with a number of other paratroopers, bought tickets to a miniature afrplane ride at the park. Instead of remaining in the seat, Keefe crawled out of the plane, and hanging to the axle, started spinning.

As he spun, his feet came in contact with a neon sign over the ticket booth, knocking it off; he was slammed against a nearby building, and finally, losing his grip on the axle, hurled to the top of the parked car.

The impact knocked Keefe unconscious, Tuxworth said, and bystanders rendered first aid. When the soldier was revived, he walked away "under his own power," the officer said.

White Flags

We stalled around keeping guard on their southern flank.

I saw only three gun flashes from the Italian shore in reply to the big barrage, and these were promptly smothered by American guns in Sicily.

The acrid, sickly-sweet smell of the barrage pervaded everything. Through the shroud Lieutenant H. G. Grace sighted two small vessels.

Instantly he gave the alert, anticipating an E-boat attack, but closer approach showed two rowboats with four Italian soldiers in each. They had been rowing steadily toward Sicily, but they stopped and began waving white flags, shouting and pleading to be picked up.

"Row, Scoundrels."

"Row, you scoundrels," Lieutenant Commander R. F. Jenks, son of the former lord mayor of London, shouted in reply.

A large formation of American aircraft wheeled overhead. This was the first appearance of any aircraft of either side and the enemy has not yet appeared at this writing. Subsequently large squadrons of Mitchells, Marauders and Spitfires also appeared overhead, but they seemed to have difficulty in finding suitable targets.

At 6:53 a. m. a landing craft signalled: "Population Reggio on shore waving white flags. One soldier seen. No resistance." And at 7:25 another signalled: "Civilians in boat report no resistance Reggio."

Our destroyers sped up and we found this to be true. A short time later General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery crossed our bows aboard a motor launch en route to the conquered mainland.

San Giovanni Unroofed.

This destroyer and the sister ship went right past unroofed San Giovanni, past the railway yards that were a shambles of wrecked trains and gaily steamed through Messina strait. This would have been suicide as recently as ten days ago and only four days ago motor torpedo boats cautiously negotiated the strait in the dark of night.

Powerful British naval forces patrolling the narrow body of water had found nothing to do save serve as grandstand seats for the crews.

"This is a real piece of cake," exclaimed one rating in a disappointed tone.

"Hard or easy, Allied troops are now within walking distance of Berlin—and that's what counts," declared Commander Jenks.

We celebrated the occasion on a bottle of sherry the captain had bought at Gibraltar.

The ship's company is running a lottery on when Italy will offer to surrender.

Change to a better used car. Many are offered daily in Constitution Want Ads.

You Wouldn't Abuse Your Body— why abuse your tires?

More than two-thirds of the rubber on your tire is in the carcass. Only one-third on your tread. But the more you drive on a non-tread tire the less value it has and the more dangerous it is.

There's probably many thousands of miles left in your tire carcass if properly treaded. The cost is small.

We'll tell you how to get your tires retreaded if you'll drive in.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 6, 1943.

Women for Industry

It is the consensus of war industrial management that the greatest difficulty, at this time, is that of keeping women workers on the job. The recent wave of unfounded optimism which has swept the country has, apparently, induced many women in war jobs to leave their posts and return to home life.

In face of this regrettable situation, comes a statement from the War Man-Power Commission that approximately 900,000 additional women workers will be needed by July of next year.

Many women are eager to do their full part in the winning of the war and realize that they can best serve by working in the factories which produce the essential materiel of war. Women have proven themselves fully capable of handling most such jobs and, in many types of work, are superior to men.

The fact that there is a higher proportion of absenteeism among women than among men workers is understandable and should not be held against them. Many women find it necessary to take a day or two, occasionally, for household duties which must be done.

It is likewise understandable how many of these women workers wish to return to their normal, home life as soon as possible. It should be impressed upon them all, however, that the war is far from won, that it can still be lost and that the greatest present threat to victory is that slackening in production, on the home front, that is bound to result if too many quit their war jobs.

As for the 900,000 additional women workers needed, they will have to be drawn, in large proportion, from the ranks of women in the homes who, hitherto, have not contemplated accepting factory work. An intensive program of public education, both as to the need of those now working continuing on the job and of many as yet unemployed, finding war essential work, is clearly indicated.

The con gentry, too, must keep abreast of changing times. One in the west has refinished the gold brick, he says, to resemble a meat loaf.

S. S. Jerome Jones

Today, at the shipyards in Savannah, a new Liberty ship will be christened, as she slides down the ways and into the element which, henceforth, will be her natural habitat.

This ship will be named the "Jerome Jones." There is no one in all Atlanta who will not be present in spirit at that launching and who will not realize that this new vessel will bear a name that will forever be inspiration for faithful service and never-weakening effort in duty.

Jerome Jones, for so many years editor of the Journal of Labor, here, was, throughout his life, an example of the best type of labor leader. He loved to forward the cause of the working man, but he loved, even more, to forward the cause of all mankind.

It was from this constant desire to help his fellows that came the intense interest in public education which was one of the outstanding features of his career. He was an early champion of the proposal to provide free school books for the children in the grade schools. He constantly advocated healthful, hot lunches for all school children.

He enjoyed the friendship and unfailing respect of men in every walk of life. His writings, and his example, provided inspiration for men who seek justice in human relations.

Atlanta is proud that the name "Jerome Jones" shall be given a great ship which today embarks to contribute her fullest share to the cause of freedom. If the ship remains as faithful to trust as did the man, that name will be carried in honor across all the seas of the world.

Unhappy Finland, at this report, would dearly love to return to the Allies' sheltering arms. As they say in gay Hollywood, you never know who your real friends are until you are divorced from them.

A Long, Hard Fight Ahead

Despite the belief of state health officials that the turning point has been reached in Georgia's war on venereal disease, it must not be imagined that eradication of syphilis is in sight. The same officials warned that it will take many years of education and treatment before we can hope to stamp out the plague.

That it can be done, however, is proven by the experience of other countries which have succeeded in practically eliminating the disease in their populations. Outstanding examples of such success are to be found in the Scandinavian countries.

It will, of course, take longer to win this war in the United States than it did in the smaller countries. Until syphilis is conquered all over the nation, Georgia will always suffer under some incidence of the disease, brought in from other states even though there should be none in her own population.

Open prostitution, the chief cause of the spread of syphilis, is today a thing of the past in this state, according to health officials. They credit this achievement to Army and police officials. There must be no return of open, commercialized prostitution if the gains made in the war on venereal disease are to be maintained.

There are 266 clinics for treatment of the disease now in operation, with 45,000 cases under treatment this year.

For the sake of the future generations of Georgians it is devoutly to be desired that the present warfare against this disease shall know no slackening, that there shall be no let-up by either health or police authorities until it can be classed with that growing list of physical scourges which belong only in the limbo of things that are past.

Comes the great reckoning and the animals may have something to say about the Jap reverting to the ape without consulting the ape.

England's Building Program

The war has not yet been won, but already 1,300 British experts are working on plans envisaging the construction of four million post-war homes to replace losses during the blitz and to improve general housing conditions in England. Architects, city planners and three ministers of the British government are engaged in the gigantic project which not only considers housing facilities for multitudes of people, but replacement of business houses, churches, other public buildings and factories.

Homes for the homeless must come first, one minister said, and they must be built during the first five or ten years after the peace. In addition, all citizens must be properly clad and fed, he added. It is apparent a great effort is to be made by the British government to insure that England's population will not return when the war ends to the "bad old days" that followed World War I.

Great problems face these planners of a new England. In the building program there are the very practical impediments of shortages. Isolated as she is from her former European markets, England is short of timber, bricks, cement, many metals and pre-fabrication machinery. And because the war has first call on everything, there are other shortages of man power, capital and facilities.

One argument offered in the House of Commons is that a great building program when the war ends will absorb up to 1,500,000 workers as they are demobilized from the Army, thus helping solve the expected unemployment problem, and plans are being worked out with labor leaders to eliminate any trouble that may arise in that emergency.

Another suggestion receiving favorable attention is adoption of the United States payrent-to-own plan as operated here by the FHA, under which war-impoverished civilians will be helped by the government to own their own homes after the war.

The Allies' warning to neutrals one and all, not to harbor Axis gangsters, gives Fats Goering no place to go. Fortunately, he is all dressed up for it.

New suspenders are out in Hitler's Germany for the duration. If worst comes to worst, though, Heinie has the love of characters like Himmler to keep him warm.

Georgia Editors Say:

WHY WAR GAS IS NOT USED

(From The Albany Herald.)

One of the reasons why gas has not yet been used by the Axis powers, to any great extent at least was given by a United States chemical officer who recently returned from an advanced base in New Guinea, where he and his unit were ready to use gas if the Japanese forced it upon them.

This chemical officer is Colonel Burton D. Willis, who said that war gas is not a good technical weapon unless its users have air supremacy, and with that there is no need for it.

Make no doubt about it—if the Germans or the Japs thought they could win the war with gas they would not hesitate to use it. But they know, as Colonel Willis expressed it, that "we have a pretty long lead on the enemy in the way of individual protection in chemical warfare," and he might have added that they know, too, that we have a long lead on them in the ability to give "gas for gas" should the time for doing so ever arrive.

Our ability to make use of gas as a weapon of warfare, in other words, is the best possible defense against its use by the enemy. Being so well prepared, we are practically insured against the use of this terrifying weapon of war, probably for the duration.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

HOPKINS ON WAR LENGTH WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Because he sits in the inner sanctum of the Roosevelt-Churchill war councils and is undoubtedly one of the best informed men in Washington, the prediction by Harry L. Hopkins that we cannot crush Germany and Japan before midsummer of 1945, two years hence, is deserving of the fullest consideration.

Writing in the current issue of the American Magazine, Mr. Hopkins, a close friend and adviser to the President, presents carefully documented arguments in support of his conviction that we are faced with two more years of hard fighting on the world battle fronts before we can look to final victory.

"If we lose Russia," Mr. Hopkins states, "the end is even more remote."

The Hopkins thesis, it may be said, represents the conservative extreme of two divergent viewpoints on the probable length of the war.

Many or most of our old-line military leaders, those who are accustomed to think in terms of World War I tactics, hold, as Mr. Hopkins contends, that we yet have a long, hard road ahead of us. Despite the notable Allied victories achieved in recent months, it is insisted that the German military machine is a far ways from being broken.

The more optimistic view, held chiefly by high-ranking Allied airmen, contends that the way is open for knocking Germany out of the war within a few months, once we are able to release the full flood of air power that has been accumulated for the past year and a half.

HOPKINS' ARGUMENT To consider the Hopkins view first, his arguments against expectations of an early victory may be summarized briefly as follows:

"Industry in Europe is still functioning, just as English industry still functioned during and after Germany's worst air raids. Nazi war production is thought to be down not much more than 10 per cent from raids and other causes. Germany, though in a bad way, suffering critical shortages of oil and planes, still has enough supplies for maintaining her armies and essential civilian needs."

The Nazis also have "adequate supplies of steel and aluminum. . . . Germany's permanent military casualties probably exceed 3,000,000 men. . . . But Germany can still keep her 10,000,000 men or so under arms," due to the fact that "probably nearly 13,000,000 foreigners are working in Germany today, not because they want to but because they have to. . . ."

An important part of the conservative thesis, not developed fully by Mr. Hopkins, is that the Nazis are in more complete control in Germany than the Fascists were in Italy, and that the Nazis, realizing their necks are at stake, may be relied upon to fight until the bitter end. Hitler's recent appointment of Himmler to watch over the home front is an indication of the precautions being taken against any possibility of a civilian revolt.

By pulling in their forces from the far-extended Russian front and concentrating on fortifications around the homeland, the Germans, it is claimed, could defend themselves indefinitely, even against the invasion army we are planning to lay down in Europe.

That, in substance, represents the conservative Hopkins viewpoint. It is not to be discounted as too pessimistic. Things might well turn out that way.

ON THE OTHER VIEW On the other hand, the argument of the more optimistic airmen is epitomized by what happened at Hamburg. There the second largest city in Germany was reduced to rubbish in seven days of concerted air attack.

Air Marshal Harris, of Britain, has stated that he could end the war in 30 days if given enough forces to send a thousand heavy bombers over Germany daily for that period.

Conceding that that might be an overstatement, some of our own top-ranking American air officials have gone almost as far. Germany has only some 25 or 30 first-class cities. It is in these that the vast majority of German war and industrial production is centered.

Our airmen hold that if these industrial centers are devastated in the manner of Hamburg, Germany will be forced out of the war for lack of equipment to keep her armies going, regardless of whether home morale were able to stand up under the destruction.

Applied to this country, it would be equivalent to bombing raids destroying New York, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, Dayton, Buffalo, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, Kansas City and a dozen other of our principal cities. How we could stand up under such a blow no one knows.

But no one believes that German morale would be able to survive air attacks on this scale. Even if the Hitlerite army were left intact, the people simply would refuse to carry on, the airmen say.

BOTH ARE PLAUSIBLE Thus both sides are able to make out plausible cases in support of their views. It might work out either way. The test will come when we are able to put enough heavy bombers in the air over Germany to undertake what Air Marshal Harris wants. That time may come this winter. Every indication is that we are holding back our real effort until then, when the longer winter nights make bombing operations easier.

There was one thing about the Hopkins article that has left Washington observers guessing. That relates to the condition he seemed to place on Russia continuing in the war. With the Red army on the march in its greatest offensive of the war, to raise a question of that kind now seems out of place.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Housekeeping And Religion.

It is possible that the Atlanta wife who told me this experience of hers won't be too enthusiastic about seeing it retold here. But it can do her no harm and it contains, I believe, a moral that all of us can apply to ourselves.

The raconteur of the story is very well known. Her husband is one of Atlanta's leading citizens. Before they were married she had lived her life in the north. When, after the wedding, she came to Atlanta to take charge of his home, it was her first experience with an exclusively Negro house staff of servants. It was a large home, requiring six or eight servants to operate.

When she first came she found the house in what to her was deplorable condition. Her husband, you see, had lived there alone and the servants had pretty well done as they pleased. The result was the house was untidy, things were done, if at all, in slipshod manner and the condition was, in every way, quite shocking.

For the first few weeks she didn't get very far in inculcating her ideas as to how a house should be kept into the house staff. But, one day, she had an inspiration. She remembered that every servant there was a faithful and enthusiastic member of the church. So, she called them together one morning and talked to them.

The Lesson Of Creation.

She spoke of the story of the creation, as told in Genesis. She asked them if, as good Christians and sensible persons, they didn't think the Lord had created a very beautiful and marvelous world for us all to live in. They agreed, heartily.

Then she reminded how it took the Lord six days to create the world and how He did certain, specific tasks in that creation on each of the six days.

"Suppose," she asked, "He had done the work He had set for Himself on Monday. And on Tuesday. Then, on Wednesday, suppose He had said, "Oh, I'm kinder tired. I'll rest for a few days. I can go on with the job next week." Don't you know He would never have finished the task. Or, at least, the world He created wouldn't have been half as beautiful as it is."

Again they agreed with her. So then she pointed the moral.

She told them we should all follow after the Lord as closely as we can. That we should do the tasks before us systematically and promptly, just as He did the task of creation. And she pointed out that when the house was untidy, dusty, unattractive, they were betraying the trust placed in them and not keeping their corner of the world as beautiful as they might. That they should try to follow the example set by the Lord in their everyday lives and work.

Then she asked that they work out, among themselves, a weekly schedule for the duties which all had to do in the house. Then submit it for her approval and, in future, do their best to live up to it.

It worked. She reports she has had no trouble of that nature since.

And, in other matters, she has found it always effective to make a Scriptural application when she wants to impress anything upon the servants.

For instance, when she found they were wastefully throwing far too much good food into the garbage cans, she taught a lesson with the parable of the loaves and fishes as her text. And so on.

We Can All Learn Lesson.

The same lessons which this charming woman had taught her servants, can quite easily, and profitably, be applied to ourselves, each one of us.

The honest work we do, the responsibilities we carry, have been given us to teach us and to test us. We shall be worthy of our tasks only if we emulate, as closely as we can, He who scheduled the details of the creation over a six-day week and faithfully performed each task on the day assigned.

The worker who does not do the best work of which he is capable, is betraying the religion to which he has given his faith. All his protestations on Sunday at church cannot condone the sins of omission or of sloppy work he has left behind during the week.

The housekeeper whose house is dirty, dusty and untidy, is betraying her responsibility to keep her small corner of a beautiful world as attractive as possible.

And the writer of a daily newspaper column who does not strive to make that column as helpful and as entertaining as possible, every day, is another who is unworthy of the trust and the opportunity fate has placed in his typewriting fingers.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

To Eat Some Crow NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—This is going to be a quick and snappy salute to the Communists of the Maritime Union who have been patrolling the World-Telegram plant, because, later on in the piece, I have to poke my napkin into my neckband and eat some crow. Not a platter of crow, but just a wing, but anyway crow, because I made a one-base error the other day.

This tribute to the Commies, who control one of our most dangerous unions and want to take over and actually possess and rule all our merchant vessels now afloat, building and to be built, was written by a bluejacket of the U. S. Navy who served with some of them in the armed guard, the service that mans the guns of the cargo ships. I am eliminating a few points which might be used to identify him because our national government thinks very well of this Communist party-line organization, as it very well should, being responsible for its rise, and might punish the bluejacket.

"My first trip on a merchant ship was in ——, 1942," says he. "It was in the winter, no time for pleasure cruising in the north Atlantic and the season when the submarines were at their worst on the Murmansk run. We went to Russia. Most of the seamen were old and very nice to us. Others were not. They always talked about port bonuses and the pay they were getting. All they seemed to be concerned about was themselves and not their ship. The captain aboard ship had nothing to say. The union delegate does all the talking for the seamen. My next trip was in ——, 1943, to South Africa. We had a lot of merchantmen on this trip. They were always in hot water, arguing about their work and living conditions. One of the merchantmen told a member of our gun crew that whatever he said goes. Most of the gun crew were young boys and on their first trip. One night we were told by this merchant marine to get out of the mess hall. The mess hall was given to us by the captain, but the Merchant Marine said they had given us the mess hall and the bedding we were using and, if they said to get out, we were supposed to. They also stated that they were paying for our meals aboard ship, too.

"This particular Merchant Marine had been taken off other ships for displaying the same attitude toward other Navy gun crew personnel. I told him any time he had any complaints or orders to give to my gun crew he would have to see my gunnery officer. He was eventually taken off my ship because of his actions."

Another Method That illustrates one line of conduct by the Communists. They have two lines, however. The other is fraternization, indoctrination and proselyting. Instead of sneering at the bluejackets' patriotism and comparatively low pay, they sympathize with them and tell them that if "labor," meaning Communists, ran the country, they would do much better. They give them extra food out of the crew's mess with the union's compliments and invite them to Communist meetings held in the guise of union councils and importune them to sign petitions to President Roosevelt to rescind the deportation order against Harry Bridges, the alien Communist boss of the docks on the Pacific coast who is now trying to muscle into the east coast. This although men in the armed forces are forbidden to petition their superior officers.

And Now The Crow And now, waiter, the crow. I just got a letter from Sergeant K. Chester, who used to work as a photographer for Time and he says the picture of me that Time ran opposite the picture of second-front Joe Curran, the vicarious commando and summer-time sailor who runs the union, was not one of the batch that Time's brother, Life, took of me some years ago when Life ordered complementary stories from Heywood Broun and me, for $1,000 each and then reneged on the deal. And I am afraid the boy is right. What threw me was the cutline about Pegler on the lake because a lot of that batch were taken at the lake on my place at Pound Ridge. However, some time ago they did run one out of that batch obtained as a part of the deal for the story, and otherwise my essay on the incident stands.

I make this correction out of no special consideration for Henry Luce and the Time-Life outfit but in my own interest. It isn't pleasant but it makes a fellow feel better.

Faith

I hear the lazy drip of summer rain
That patters on the window, and I know
Wild cherry trees are bathing once again,
And morning glories shall be on the go,
Climbing in their blue and purple crowds
All about the fields of corn that rise,
Like thirsty people, reaching for the clouds,
As people reach in prayer toward distant skies.

I hear the rain begin its pitter-patter,
Knowing that swift yellow streams shall flow
Across a wealth of gardens. Does it matter
That earth has habit in its come and go,
That rain shall fall, and silver stars appear;
That spring shall flood to blossom every year?

'Tis good to know that rain shall always fall,
That spring shall come again, and winter too;
That I have heard within my heart love's call—
That although you are gone, there once was you.

THOMAS ANDREW ROMEO.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

MR. HARTSFIELD GOES TO WASHINGTON Having read where Mayor William B. Hartsfield was in Washington trying to get some Army help on making the Atlanta airport one which would fit the needs of the future and assure Atlanta a place in the postwar development,

I listened in vain for what should have been a spontaneous response from council and other municipal officials.

After all, the city council of Atlanta must do the job. It ought to be taking the lead in such matters. To date no member of council has come forward with an enthusiastic word in favor of the plan.

It will be interesting to watch the next meeting and see if there is complete support of it.

It is odd how some few men run for office, receive a majority of the votes, and then devote most of their thinking to any device which will embarrass the administration—instead of to measures which would make Atlanta a better city and one with an even greater future than it possesses.

I think it may be said for Mayor Hartsfield that he has been a good public servant; that he has devoted himself to the best interests of the city. I have not always agreed with him and do not expect always to do so. I would not expect others always to agree.

But, by the same token, a citizen might expect honest and above-board disagreement and not introduction of grudge ordinances and measures calculated only to embarrass. The man is able and articulate and the mere fact that he is seems to anger some. His record shows no measure hostile to the city's interests.

He now has, without any help or encouragement, gone to Washington after aid for the airport improvements.

It is fair to ask what is going on in other cities.

IN OTHER CITIES "Trends," a weekly digest of economic developments and tendencies, reports as follows on the world transportation picture as a whole, and concludes:

"Here at home, the big battle of America's inland cities for leadership in world air line traffic is under way. Chicago has torn away a railroad spur to make its municipal airport the country's biggest. Nearby is a Douglas Aircraft testing field which is even larger. Chicago hopes to take it over after the war. Within a 50-mile radius, 72 smaller airports are proposed. Chicagoans picture their city as the hub of the postwar world, with sky traffic fanning out to Europe and Asia via Arctic routes. In the face of Chicago's bid for air eminence, the twin cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul have dropped their traditional rivalry and are making common cause. The Wold-Chamberlain field serving that area already occupies more than 700 acres, and Twin Cities planners have asked the War Department to cede 100 more acres from the Fort Snelling reservation. One new Wold-Chamberlain runway will be 9,300 feet long. Also bidding actively for postwar air traffic are Kansas City, St. Louis, Des Moines and Omaha. All these projects have one thing in common. They call for speedways to the field and complete networks of feeder airports. Blueprints also outline shopping and residential districts for airport employes, automobile parking areas, aircraft private passenger planes. Behind all these preparations, of course, is the expectation that new industries will graviate after the war to points where air facilities are most convenient."

Those things are going on with the complete support of the city governments and the thorough support of all other agencies.

The last act of our council was encouraging. It refused to juggle money earmarked for city improvement to allow for political spending of that money. We may hope that a real majority of council has made up its mind to have done with pettiness and to work for Atlanta. We need to go on from there.

LET US BE FRANK If Mayor Hartsfield does not have the help of all of us; if we are not able to work out a plan for our airport and to help our neighbors with their own airport developments, some other city will take away our future.

Tampa's city council acted in a most lamentable manner when the opportunity came to make that city the great air center of the southeast. Miami grabbed it.

Today the records show that of all the people to depart from the United States (not including soldiers) more than 51 per cent left from Miami.

Tampa could have had it.

It is well to keep in mind that a shift of 100 miles or more makes little difference in the development of an air center. We could lose leadership in our area very easily.

The mayor sees it. The city governments of Omaha, Des Moines, Minneapolis, and larger cities such as Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago, see it.

They are already planning runways 9,000 feet long, airports which can take on the expansion and the great planes of the future. They are working together.

And here at home?

Well, I'll tell you. The reason I am doing this article is because I met last week a member of Atlanta's city government and I asked him what he thought of the mayor's visit and what chance he had of getting help.

"Oh, he's just up there showing off," he said.

It completes the picture. I think it is a time for frankness. The people ought to keep a close watch on subsequent developments and meetings of our city government. Who is for Atlanta and who for himself?

It isn't at all a question of being for or against Hartfield. The point is he is doing a good job. His ideas, to date, have been sound. And the question is whether he is going to get the enthusiastic support the job must have if Atlanta is going to make progress in business and aviation when the war is done.

There Is No Right Time For a Recess When You Are Fighting Fire

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

It now seems probable that we could defeat Germany in a few months if all of us, from the highest to the humblest, would do our uttermost quickly and continuously, not pausing for breath till the job is finished.

But we are not fighting that way. We are looking on the bright side—hoping Russia will do the hard part. We have returned to our old sick habit of wishful thinking.

Because our overwhelming force—all the force we were able to concentrate—was able to defeat one small German army of nine short divisions; because our control of air and sea lanes cut off Rommel's supply of gasoline, thus grounding his planes and stalling his vehicles, and leaving him no choice but death or surrender, we told ourselves the Germans were cracking.

The war was in the bag; the submarine beaten, the enemy air force beaten; nothing remained but mopping up. War workers went fishing, and officials in Washington began to make plans for return to civil life.

But the Germans have made us pay a fearful price for Sicily.

Do you remember Stalingrad? Do you remember the recent German offensive that was stopped cold in a few weeks? What the Russians did the Germans can do, if they have the will. And where is any sign of collapse?

They can hold us up indefinitely if they are willing to die, and we are willing to waste time to avoid wasting lives.

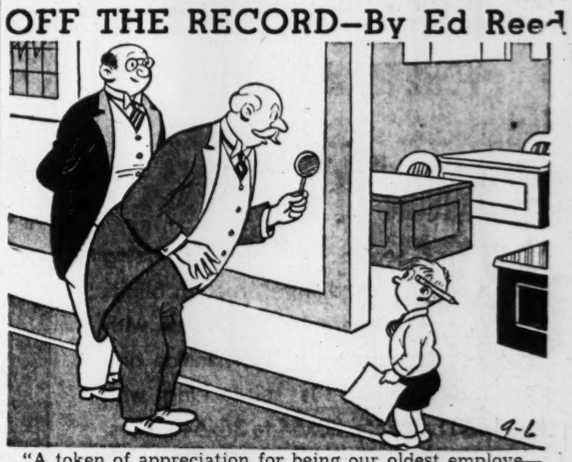

Doing it the slow way might not matter, except by adding some billions to our debt, if the Germans were our only enemies. But every hour of delay plays into the hands of the Japs.

Even the most optimistic officials concede that the Japs, if given five years to exploit the resources of conquered lands, will be almost unbeatable.

The Japanese people are taught to expect a 100-year war. They expect nothing but warfare the rest of their lives. And we know they quit only when they are dead.

To those who relax in hope of an early and easy victory, there is one answer: "God forgive them, for they know not what they do."

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"A token of appreciation for being our oldest employe—The records show you've been with the firm two weeks!"

Dudley Glass

My column today is virtually written for me by Mrs. C. W. Mc Farland, of Marietta, who pro pounds a number of questions.

She wants to know if I have hard luck in banks—such as choosing the shortest line at a window and finding the man ahead has a bag of loose change to be counted.

I have. Indeed, that experience has served me for several columns and may serve again.

She asks why people park cars in the middle of a space long enough for two cars.

That, I'd say, is pure cussedness.

Why do people you pick up in your car let their children stand on the cushions with muddy feet? Mrs. McFarland inquires.

I wouldn't know. I don't pick up people with children. Maybe I would if I could borrow the car.

She suggests I invent a window shade that doesn't tangle up with the curtain tie-backs when raised or lowered.

I'm no inventor, but I solved that question years ago. Merely tear down the lace curtains and shine your shoes with them. There is no excuse for both curtains and shades. That is, not in my bedroom. I have no jurisdiction elsewhere.

Why, asks my correspondent, when you stop your car for a pedestrian to cross, does he or she saunter across instead of stepping lively?

Well, sir, I have often asked myself that question, but could never answer it. Maybe the pedestrian feels that when he—or she—has the green light he—or she—can take his—or her—time if he—or she—is so disposed. Darn our language's lack of a neuter pronoun.

And, asks Mrs. McFarland, as a parting thrust, why don't columnists ever answer their readers' questions?

Sometimes they can't. And sometimes they do.

To the 'Hon.'

Although this is not an election year I have just received a letter from a national officeholder addressed "Hon. Dudley Glass."

Most of my letters start with: "Dear Sir" or "Dear Dudley" or perhaps, in case of a form letter, "Gentlemen." Sometimes a fine old chap writes my name and adds "Esq." in a fine Spencerian hand.

Neither in Bartlett's Popular Quotations, the Home Encyclopedia dated 1893 nor the current World Almanac can I find any rule or regulation defining who or whom, as you prefer, is legally entitled to be addressed as "Hon."

It is customary to address with this phrase senators, governors and representatives in Congress. Just as a justice of the peace is "Your Honor" during a trial. But it seems the secretaries of such dignitaries like to play safe. I know of one letter, shown me in confidence as to identities, in which a Georgia congressman, in writing, or dictating, to a tenant at home, addressed him thusly:

"Hon. James Juggins:

"I learn from authoritative sources that you have sold three of my hogs, consumed another, used my fence for firewood, overdrawn your account at the store and moved away, owing me approximately $137.67. This is to notify you I shall hold you responsible. In my opinion you are a thief and a scoundrel.

"I remain, yours most respectfully,

"BLANK, DASH, BLANK.

"Representative, Blank District."

While it is flattering to be addressed as "Hon.," one sometimes feels it's a rubber stamp salutation. He has an impression the letter has been run through the multigraph machine.

Perhaps the finest American title is "Mr." It implies equality.

'Done Him Wrong'

Beth Williams, of the Quitman Free Press, called on a lawyer last week—she doesn't say why—and coaxed permission to copy a letter from a Brooks county Negro, now serving overseas in the Army. And she printed it—and I'm clipping it:

"Hello Dear Lawer—How are you? Fine I hope, but I am not so well. But lissen, dear lawer, I am sending you $50 for sewt for my devoce and lissen dear lawer, I wont you to please fix it so I can get my baby an allso fix it so my baby will come to my mother and I wont you to fix it so my wife can't get no nother dime of my money, cose I sho don't wont her to have none. So please dear lawer fix it so she can't get no money from me and so my mother can get my baby suppote. I don't mine suppoting my one child but I don't wont to suppote children who is not mine nor mother suppote a woman who me and her been separated for 8 years and she is having children for other mens. I can't feel good to be suppoting her. And also dear lawer, I feel good to pay you to have her stop getting my money and allso fix it so my mother can get my baby's suppote cose I wont my wife to stop getting another dime. I bin sick ever since I found out she was getting my money. Thank you dear lawer and do all you can for me for I am over sees and can't not come home."

Rochelle Lions Club Sponsors Lunch Room

ROCHELLE, Ga., Sept. 5.—The Rochelle Lions Club is sponsoring a lunchroom for the Rochelle Consolidated schools, and members have obtained pledges for the necessary funds to erect a building for the project.

The local school board has agreed to furnish one-half of the necessary funds, the Rochelle city council, one-fourth of the cost, and the balance is being secured by public subscription and already $170 has been raised in that manner.

FIRE TO MAKE FIREPOWER—The second Labor Day in this global war will find Georgians at work in the Charleston Navy Yard—using fire to make the firepower to burn the Axis. Left a gas burner operated by Elbert B. Grimes, who used to live in Columbus, cuts through a piece of metal, while at the right James S. Kerce, formerly of Rome, and Omer E. Taylor, formerly of Millen, work at a flaming forge. The ultimate aim of all the mighty work is symbolized by the picture in the center—big guns booming, and in booming roaring out America's answer to the Axis nations who would threaten the free and good living that is the American way of life.

Outdo Axis Labor, U. S. Workers Urged

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Leaders of labor, government and the fighting forces urged the American workingman today to recognize his counterpart in Axis lands as an enemy just as personal and just as deadly as the Allied soldier faces.

That was the central theme of Labor Day statements which heaped praise on homefront forces for a miracle of production and urged them to still mightier efforts to shorten the war and save the lives of the men who use the weapons they forge.

Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, chief of the Navy's industrial incentive division, put it in a fighting man's succinct phrases:

"The immediate enemy of the American worker is his opposite number on the Axis production line, and he is a formidable enemy. But the American worker knows that man for man he can out-produce, out-create any Axis worker, because the men and women of America are free, and are fighting to remain free. Ours is a greater, higher stake. The men and women of the production line will out-produce the Axis workers as surely as our armed forces will defeat the enemy's fighting men."

FDR Prideful.

President Roosevelt led off the chorus yesterday with a message of pride and confidence addressed to workers, farmers, and employers.

"To make time and thus save lives and suffering," the President said, "our American workers, employers and farmers will need not only to maintain their production pace but to increase it. Their record to date has been magnificent. . . . That increased production effort will be forthcoming."

Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO), expressed pride in the war record of the organization and asserted it "will not rest on past achievements but will set ever higher goals."

"American labor must match every forward step by our fighting men," he said.

Green Warns.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor (AFL), said workers on the homefront have met their test with success equal to that of their fighting brothers, but warned that "the tasks ahead of us appear even greater."

American production, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins said, "is one of the major reasons why complete and sweeping victory must ultimately come to the United Nations."

Frank Knox, secretary of the Navy, described the plans now ready for vast military offensives as based largely on the supplies and weapons "that will be forthcoming from this great arsenal of democracy." He paid tribute to the "unstinted co-operation" of labor in the past and added, "we know we can depend on you."

Admiral Ernest J. King, commodore of the United States fleet, expressed "greateful appreciation" from the Navy's fighting men but warned "the toughest part of the job is still ahead."

Ship Launching To Be Feature Of Labor Day

Georgians will observe this second Labor Day of the war by launching a Liberty ship in honor of a labor leader, and by continuing to work in the factories producing the tools of war.

Many of the state's labor leaders gathered at Savannah for today's launching of the S. S. Jerome Jones, named for the late editor of the Atlanta Journal of Labor. Joan Jones, granddaughter of Jones, will sponsor the ship.

The vessel was paid for by war bonds purchased by members of the Georgia Federation of Labor.

Gramling to Speak.

After the Jerome Jones slides down the ways, the keel of another Liberty ship honoring another labor leader will be laid. It will be the S. S. Robert Fechner, named in honor of the one-time head of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Charles B. Gramling, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, and George L. Googe, southeastern representative of the American Federation of Labor, are scheduled to speak at the launching and keel-laying ceremonies.

At Atlanta, some 500 union members planned to parade to the Red Cross blood donor center and each give a pint of blood.

Capitol Offices Open.

Offices in the Fulton county courthouse and the Atlanta city hall will be closed for the day, but capitol offices will remain open. There will be one mail delivery in the residential section of Atlanta and two in the business section. Post offices will close at noon. Atlanta stores will close for the holiday.

Banks, state and federal government employes will work as usual. Governor Arnall, in lieu of a proclamation, issued a statement Saturday saying that "labor has patriotically discharged every duty required of it" and has "contributed largely to the nation's war effort."

Bus and train terminals reported heavy weekend passenger loads, but said civilians seemed generally to be heeding the government's request to stay home so that servicemen could travel.

Nurse Polly Morris On Hospital Train

An Atlantan, Lieutenant Polly Morris, now with Army nurses in England, was aboard an American hospital train when it made its initial run recently, transporting 200 American sick and wounded soldiers to hospitals, an Associated Press dispatch said yesterday.

The soldiers, the dispatch said, were from the Middle Eastern theater of the war and were brought to England in a hospital ship. The American train, 14 coaches long and built in British shops, was at the harbor to meet the vessel.

The train was built to accommodate sitting cases and stretcher cases, and provided operating facilities.

MISSIONARY HONORED.

ALBANY, Ga., Sept. 5.—Miss Addie Cox, a Baptist missionary in China, recently reported safely away from the Japanese, was honored this week when the Girls' Auxiliary of the First Baptist church of Albany gave their organization the name of "Addie Cox." Miss Cox, a sister of Mrs. O. G. Hall, recently sent a message to the effect that she was safe and well.

in the area to the east of Bagnara and on the slopes of the Aspromonte mountains."

Both communiques claimed that an Allied cruiser was badly hit by bombs and that attacks were made on Allied landing forces.

According to the latest information here the Italians had two battleships of the old but modernized Cavour class at Taranto along with one or two cruisers and a handful of destroyers.

If this froce left Taranto it either would have to make a bold run around Sicily to join with the bulk of the Italian fleet on the west coast or withdraw into the Adriatic.

British navy men would not be surprised to find that the ships had sailed all the way to Trieste.

After acknowledging the need for swift peace, the Rome broadcast gave this eary picture of the Italian war outlook:

"We realize, however, that no street demonstrations will bring it (peace) any nearer.

"Meanwhile, the enemy, supported by huge quantities of material and the largest air umbrella ever seen, is advancing on our mainland.

"Our soldiers Calabria are fighting without pause, but they have not adequate means at their disposal.

"They are far from their supply bases. Such lines of communication as do exist are being continually broken and often rendered useless by the enemy.

"We are watching what is happening in Calabria with deep grief."

Accord Is Seen Between Reds, Greek Church

MOSCOW, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The Soviet state, which has been separated from the church for the 25 years since the revolution, has advanced reconciliation with the old Greek orthodox institution by approving its call for a congress to elect a patriarch and organize a holy synod.

The move was announced in an official statement after a meeting of Premier Stalin, Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and the three metropolitans or bishops of Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev at the Kremlin last night.

Stalin was described as sympathetic toward the congress, which will be the first since 1925, when the church discussed a split with the "new" church headed by Metropolitan Alexander Vidensky. The latter was not represented at last night's meeting.

The announcement represented no formal change in the position of the Soviet state constitution, which provides for freedom both for the practice of religion and antireligious propaganda. It is important, however, as evidence of a rapprochement of the Soviet state with the orthodox church.

The wartime truce between the church and state was thus confirmed following numerous indications of a reconciliation. S. A. Lozovsky, Soviet spokesman, told a press conference that freedom of religion existed, citing provisions in the constitution of 1936.

Authorization for the orthodox congress meant that the church would now be given full facilities to carry on its work. The news was received joyfully by congregations this morning.

French Deck Fallen U. S. Plane But Ignore Its German Victim

MADRID, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Two fighter planes, one American and the other German, fell in flames during a recent Allied raid upon industrial targets in Albert, in northeast France, and plunged side by side into a field, a dispatch to Madrid said today.

Both pilots were killed, it said, and added:

At dawn the next morning the Germans were chagrined to see the American plane covered with a red, white and blue field of flowers in the form of the Stars and Stripes. So intricate was the design that it must have taken many persons hours to arrange.

On the German plane there was not a single flower.

Churchill's Bomber Is Refitted

TUCSON, Ariz., Sept. 5.—(AP)—The Commando, Winston Churchill's far-traveled Liberator bomber, has arrived at the Tucson division of Consolidated Vultee Aircraft to be refitted.

Now on its fourth set of engines, the bomber carried the British prime minister to Russia, Turkey, Cairo the first unconditional surrender conference at Casablanca and the recent parley at Quebec.

Officials here said they expected the refitted plane would be returned to the prime minister's service.

Individual Enterprise Must Join Freedoms List, Thinks Butler

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Sept 5—(AP)—Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, said today that to the four freedoms "there must certainly be added a fifth—the freedom of individual enterprise . . . which is the most important of all."

In his annual lecture at the Parrish Memorial Art museum here Butler asserted that "given the fifth freedom, then the other four freedoms take their place as part of the life of every free man. It recognizes that the individual human body, the individual human intellect and the individual human soul are the fundamental and the moving and guiding forces in any form of true civilization."

Adding that no person should be regarded as a permanent member of a class or group, he said the individual "must be free to move about as he likes economically, socially and politically."

The United States form of government "shows clearly" how small nations can be protected from "danger of attack and humiliation," Butler said, continuing:

"The small states of Rhode Island and Delaware are as safe and as self-governing as are the large states of New York, Texas and California. Just this same relationship must exist in that world organization toward which we are so steadily moving."

Fundamental American doctrines as found in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, with its bill of rights, he said, apply to all nations, regardless of size, which participate in this world organization, as well as to individuals.

De Luce

went in the long months of training in the United Kingdom. It was carried out with far less casualties than the first day of the Sicilian campaign.

The first Allied sappers got ashore at 4:30 a. m. and the bulk of the assault troops landed at 5 a. m. or later.

Reggio Calabria, the picturesque modern seaside metropolis of Calabria province, was taken at 9 a. m. with hardly a shot fired.

I can testify that an invasion is a cinch when you control the sea and air.

I hitch-hiked from Sicily to Italy this morning in an American made "duck," thanks to the kindness of Captain Frank Speir, of West Hampton Beach, Long Island, N. Y., who waved me regally from a beach below Messina to a seat atop ammunition cases in one of the Eighth Army's "amphibious trucks."

"I was over to Italy about 5 a. m. and I'm going over again before noon," he said. "Fancy two trips to Italy between breakfast and lunch."

Speir, an engineer in the Allied amphibious command, obviously marveled himself at the seagoing efficiency of the Detroit-manufactured "ducks" which rolled in unbroken columns from a Sicilian highway into the wind-crinkled surf, and churned off in lines miles long toward the European shore.

Seagoing Trucks.

"The tall long six-wheeled boat trucks carry about four tons of cargo, including jeeps, and average six knots in a moderate sea," he explained.

Speir, wearing a floppy canvas hat, khaki shorts and tennis shoes, climbed aboard another "duck" and, with a Royal Navy motorboat in the lead like a mother goose, my craft started me on the quickest and pleasantest voyage I ever made to Europe.

A Royal Navy noncom directed operations by a public address system ashore until we got out of earshot, our propeller churning white froth and the sun covering the blue strait with dancing lights.

Remember, this is only four hours after the invasion began. The only evidences of armed action were American and British guns firing at long range across the channel from Sicily. Far to the south heavy British warships were pummeling a few Italian targets, but this action on the rim of the horizon seemed unreal.

Despite continual swells our "duck" shipped no water and the skipper displayed confidence akin to that of Columbus.

The returning "duck" skippers shouted the good news that not only Reggio but San Giovanni were already captured.

In less than two hours we pulled in beside a big landing ship and our truck hurried up wire matting on the Italian sand just on the outskirts of Reggio Calabria.

The dusty faces of Italian prisoners broke into wide grins and they made the "V" sign as they passed me.

In a requisitioned seaside farmhouse I visited a field dressing station where the only battle casualty was a British Tommy who had accidentally shot himself in the foot.

"Only two enemy shells are reported to have landed on this beach during our first assault," said a medical lieutenant. "I understand there are a couple of dead in this area, but I haven't seen them. So far as I know our troops here didn't lose a man."

A major said he was just about to move inland in order to keep up with the swift progress. The words were hardly out of his mouth when the scream of a diving plane and fire of ground batteries made all the staff hit dirt.

Caught in Air Raid.

I got a mouthful of Italian dust and covered my helmetless head with my hands as two of the German plane's three bombs bracketed me within 50 yards.

One bomb missed a landing ship. A second raised a choking cloud of smoke and powder fumes in the grove. A third set the house beside the railroad tracks on fire. It's my luck—and I'm not crabbing about it—to get caught in the middle of the only enemy air raid all day on the invasion forces in Italy.

The German air force never looked weaker than in that sortie by a single fighter-bomber when lush targets of hundreds of surface craft and thousands of motor vehicles are presented from dawn to dark along Messina strait.

I saw only one German prisoner—a service corps veteran in his late twenties. He apparently deserted his company and had hid den in a barn until the Eighth Army arrived. Still shaken by the night barrage of British and American guns from across the channel, he nearly fainted in the lemon grove during the bombing.

Reggio Calabria, once the proud center of tourist seaside gayety and archeology in this ancient civilized region, is nearly a dead city. It is as devastated as Catania and Messina were in Sicily. It is more bomb-battered than any city I saw in the Polish or Greek campaigns.

Walking its debris-littered streets for two hours you meet perhaps a total of two dozen civilians, mostly aged folks in shabby clothes with gaunt faces furtively carrying small sacks of wormy foodstuffs looted from deserted stores.

In the main square hundreds of tired infantry catch a brief rest under the shade of trees, their khaki uniforms sodden with perspiration.

Virtually every building in the formerly thriving city sags and bears scars of Allied explosives. The big opera house has a hole in the roof.

Along the promenade by the sea each fashionable hotel is a windowless skeleton and the adjoining electric railway is a shambles of twisted tracks and torn lines.

Total air war, as copied from the Axis and practiced by the Allies, kills the life of an enemy city almost quicker than poison.

Await Surrender.

A handful of black-clad policemen still armed with revolvers collected in front of the waterfront municipal office where an AMG (Allied Military Government) representative would undoubtedly take charge within a few hours.

The police said American and British air raids had destroyed the communications, industry and commerce of Reggio Calabria. They said that 50,000 civilians who fled the city's smashed homes are now scattered throughout the countryside.

Three Allied airmen reported hospitalized in the city since a raid seven weeks ago were in the city when it fell. Afoot I tried to find them from descriptions given by troops, but they already had commandeered an Italian car and driven towards the stretch of landing beaches.

The troops differed whether the airmen were British or Americans, some insisting they were a Fortress crew. It was tantalizing to have to drop a story clue temporarily and start hitch-hiking back to Sicily because the Eighth Army has not yet arranged for this correspondent—the only American reporter in this sector—to get a car and conducting officer across Italy to follow frontline skirmishes. It is impossible to dignify them by the name of battles—at least thus far.

As I hiked to the nearest re-embarkation point the latest batch of 350 skylarking Italian prisoners trudged behind me, led by one Canadian private.

A husky leading seaman, Don Arney, of Prince Rupert, British Columbia, was just getting ready to shove off in his rusty, hard-working landing craft when I hailed him with the usual "Going my way?"

He and his number two crewman, young Norman Bowen, Ottawa, Ont., both veterans of the North African and Sicilian invasions, said that today's opeartions were unbelievably quiet.

It only took about one hour to return to Sicily over waters now being swept clean of enemy mines by British trawlers.

"Sorry we can't take you to Rome just yet," said Arney. "I've always wanted to do a little boating on the Tiber."

Guerillas Take Yugoslav Seaport

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—A British broadcast quoting the Moscow radio said today that Yugoslav guerrillas had captured the seaport of Susak, on the Adriatic in northwestern Yugoslavia just below Fiume.

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, said "Susak is the most important Yugoslav port in the northern Adriatic. Only a small stream separates it from Fiume," a city awarded to Italy by a post-world war treaty. Fiume was recently reported occupied by the Germans.

CARNIVAL CROWD—Tenants of Techwood and Clark Howell homes celebrated the project's seventh birthday in a joyful mood Saturday night at a street carnival.

Sock-Dictator Booths Thrive At Techwood's Birthday Party

Small fry lined up to send baseballs sizzling right into the leering mugs of Hitler and Hirohito Saturday night as the older folk thronged booths doing a land-office business at the Techwood-Clark Howell homes tenants' association birthday party and street carnival.

Techwood drive had been roped off between Merritts avenue and Pine street to provide space for the home's 5,000 tenants to get together and the crowd increased by the minute beneath the flare of flood lamps set up along the way.

The street-carnival birthday party, which marked the seventh anniversary of the homes, was under the chairmanship of Leslie Kent. Kent has been chairman of the celebrations each year. A feature of the evening was the street dancing which began at 9 p. m.

NO HOLIDAY.

ALBANY, Ga., Sept. 5.—Albany stores and banks will stay open as usual, while the post office will give only limited service, on Labor Day tomorrow.

Five Georgians, One Of Atlanta, War Casualties

Five Georgians, including one from Atlanta, yesterday were reported wounded in various war zones by the War Department. Another was reported missing on a routine flight in this country.

The Atlantan, Technician Fifth Grade Albert H. Goodrich, husband of Mrs. Ruth Goodrich, of 459 Crew street, was wounded in the North African area, which includes Sicily. Also wounded in that area are Private Jack Adams, son of Mrs. Ora F. Beck, of Buchanan, and First Sergeant Major J. Akins, brother of Lee Akins, of Cumming.

Private William G. Salmon, son of Mrs. Opal S. Salmon, of Rome, was wounded in the Pacific area, and Private James W. Lee, son of Mrs. Mamie W. Lee, of Metter, was wounded in the Southwest Pacific zone.

Lieutenant W. T. Lipscomb Jr. was reported missing when he failed to return from a routine training flight to the Marine base at Cherry Point, N. C., his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lipscomb, of Gainesville, have learned.

While a preflight student at the Naval Training school in Athens, Ga., Lieutenant Lipscomb won second honors in a class of 288 men graduating last December. He was commissioned in the Marine Corps at Pensacola, Fla., last July.

Wilcox County Farm Bureau Holds Meeting

Special to THE CONSTITUTION

ROCHELLE, Ga., Sept. 5.—The Wilcox County Farm Bureau met Thursday with more than 100 farmers attending. The bureau has a membership of 125 and has set the goal for 320 members. L. W. Pearce, of Rochelle, has been named chairman of the membership committee.

The body went on record as opposing the change in the system of grading this season's crop of peanuts, which, if accomplished, would reduce the price by about $10 per ton, it was stated.

John M. Noble, W. T. Standard and Grover Tripp were named delegates to attend the tri-state meeting to be held in Albany Monday.

B. T. Whelchel, of Rochelle, is bureau president.

CHILDREN TREATED.

ALBANY, Ga., Sept. 5.—Reports made by visiting nurses in Dougherty county, Mrs. Elizabeth Tarver and Miss Elizabeth Jackson, indicated that special stress is being laid on immunization of preschool children with smallpox, whooping cough, and diphtheria vaccines being given. There is one case of typhoid fever in east Dougherty count, and one of typhus in west Dougherty, the nurses revealed.

CATTLE SHOW.

ALBANY, Ga., Sept. 5.—A total of 510 animals from four southwest Georgia counties had been entered by Friday in the feeder-stocker and calf sale scheduled for October 11 here. Chairman C. M. Shackelford, of the Albany Chamber of Commerce's livestock committee, has estimated that 3,000 head will be entered in the show.

NO TEACHER SHORTAGE.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 5.—Gwinnett county schools are practically operating as heretofore. The shortage of teachers has not affected the operation of the city or rural schools, according to the superintendent of the city and of the county schools. All schools are reporting good attendance for the fall term.

New Ideas Are the Life-Blood of Business, Says Vol Blacknall

Floor Covering House Adopts New Policies

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

"Ideas Rule the World," is the very terse but meaningful way in which Vol T. Blacknall, known all over the south as a successful distributor for all types of floor coverings, explains why it is that some businesses grow and prosper while others stagnate and finally surrender. New ideas are the life-blood of business, he says.

The adaptation of new ideas to the business of the Vol T. Blacknall Company, Inc.—ideas to meet new conditions—as the business has grown along since its establishment nine years ago, has meant constant and regular and gratifying growth and prosperity through all these years.

The Vol T. Blacknall Company, located at 119 Cain street, N. W., this city, has its many hundreds of customers among the retail merchants east of the Mississippi and south of Kentucky and Virginia, and also including Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Mr. Blacknall has kept more than a step ahead of many competitors by the adoption of new ideas and new methods in merchandising.

"We all realize, or should realize," he says, "that when conditions under which we operate change, then to successfully handle these changed conditions, methods and customs must often be changed and needed protection should be secured; old methods and practices must be changed to properly handle the demands and new requirements of changed conditions, else, needless losses and unwarranted hardships will be our lot."

The Vol T. Blacknall Company is today celebrating dual anniversaries. One is that the company is now entering on its tenth year, being established September 1, 1934, and the other is the first anniversary of its strictly closed show room policy—a policy adopted a year ago—which was inaugurated by "cashing in" on the idea that new merchandising methods were not only good for the firm, but honest, fair and right for its customers.

The closed show room policy means that only merchants and members of their organization who desire to sell the products distributed by the Blacknall Company will be welcomed—or even allowed—to stroll through and inspect the Blacknall lines of floor coverings. We quote Mr. Blacknall:

"I have definitely committed my company to a strict closed show room policy, which became effective September 1, 1942. Our lines will not be shown to a consumer. Only retail merchants and authorized members of their organization will have access to our show room."

The president of the company added further, "That, unlike most corporations, we do not permit consumers to be sent in or brought in to select merchandise." Merchants realize this is a distinct protection to those who deal with this big Atlanta concern, and it is said to be the only concern in the south that has inaugurated such a policy.

A Word To Merchants.

Mr. Blacknall, speaking direct to the retail merchants of the whole southeast, says this:

"Please note and clearly understand that our closed show room policy bars no retail merchant who supported and used our controlled show room in the past. He is welcome and invited to our closed show room, maintained solely for the benefit of the retail merchant. We do bar the consumer, who has no rightful place in our or any wholesale or manufacturer's show room."

As is well known to the great score of merchants served by the company, the Blacknall house, in its large plant and show rooms here, handle and distribute such well-known nationally advertised products as Amsterdam textiles, Deltox, Firth, Klearflax, Sanitas, Ozite rug cushions and carpet lining. Ozite, however, is distributed only in Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee. For all other states there is distributed Crown rug cushions and carpet lining.

In addition to the nationally advertised lines mentioned above, the company is one of the largest distributors in the south on all types of cotton rugs, now so tremendously in vogue throughout the whole country.

Mr. Blacknall extends a cordial welcome to retail merchants and members of their organization to visit his plant on Cain street and see for themselves the great variety and range of floor coverings carried by the company.

Vol T. Blacknall Discusses Significance of New Ideas

Vol T. Blacknall has a keen conception of ideas. For new ideas—new policies in his business—has brought unusual success to his big floor covering house. "In the business world," he says, "a man is 'young' or 'old' not in proportion to his years. The question is, has he 'young' ideas?" He says that 'ideas made us what we are," and then continued:

"We think or armies, navies, colossal wealth and other material things as synonymous with power.

"But the truth is, ideas rule the world.

"Why do American corporations manufacture three-fourths of all the motor vehicles in the world?

"Why does the U. S. A. have more miles of railway than all other nations combined?

"Why does this country have more radios, more telephones, more movie producers than Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and South America combined?

"Why are 85 per cent of all the bathtubs in existence installed in American homes and American hotels?

"Why is 45 per cent of all the world's visible gold supply in the hands of Uncle Sam?

"There's only one answer—ideas!

"What an age in which to live! What a country in which to live!

"What an opportunity for the American citizen in any walk of life! Ideas! Ideas! Ideas! Ideas rule the world!"

GOLD SHIELD CLEANERS specialize in rug cleaning. They know just what process to use for each type of rug. A. C. Hopkins (above) examines with pride some of the various type rugs that have been correctly processed and are ready to beautify the homes of their owners again.

Gold Shield Cleaners Give Special Care to Rugs

September is a reminder that rugs will be in for some hard wear a little later on, and if they have not had their annual cleaning (which all rugs deserve), it should be given them now while they can be spared with little inconvenience.

According to S. R. Greenblatt, president of the Gold Shield group of cleaners, which includes the American, Capital City, Decatur, Excelsior, Guthman's, May's, Piedmont, Trio and Troy, the cleaning of rugs cannot be treated as a side line.

"Your rugs represent a large invesment," says Mr. Greenblatt, "and you should choose your rug cleaner with that in mind. Especially is that true now, when rugs represent more and cleaners are crowded with other work. Inexperienced cleaners without proper equipment and space to do a thorough job can do more harm to your rug than good. This is true of home methods, also. For instance, ammonia solutions, even though they brighten the surface, may cause the colors to bleed and cut the fibers. So choose your rug cleaner with the same care you chose your rug.

"Gold Shield cleaners are specialists in rug cleaning. They have maintained a separate and distinct rug cleaning department for many years. This department is in charge of a man who knows rugs. It is equipped with machinery to clean rugs of any type. Our cleaners examine all rugs to determine what cleaning process they should come under. Then all soil and grit which have permeated the very fibers of the rug are removed, lost sizing is restored, and the rug returned to you with its original color and beauty, to serve much longer wear.

"And we are just as anxious," concluded Mr. Greenblatt, "to do a satisfactory job on your rugs as you are to have us."

Washington Seminary To Open Thursday

Three new teachers have been added to the faculty of Washington Seminary, which opens its sixty-sixth year on September 9.

The new teachers are in addition to the regular corps of teachers who have been engaged there in the past, and have been added to the staff to take care of increased enrollment.

Washington Seminary is one of Atlanta's most famous schools. This year it will have one of the largest enrollments in its history. In keeping with the school's policy, however, students will be divided into small classes so that each one may have personal attention and supervised study.

Washington Seminary begins with a kindergarten for youngsters and goes on up through eight primary grades, four years of high school and one year of post-graduate work, and courses offered include such desirable subjects as music, art, expression, domestic science, and physical training.

In speaking of its corps of of teachers, Miss Emma Scott, president and principal of the school, said:

"We are very happy to have all of our old teachers back with us. It is certainly an important advantage to the children to have teachers who are already acquainted with them. Our three new teachers have been carefully selected and I am sure that they will be very popular with the pupils."

Miss Scott announced that Mrs. Elizette Reed Barlow, of Washington Seminary's music staff spent the summer in New York where she studied technique and repertoire under Richard McClanahan, said to be America's greatest exponent of Tobias Mathay. Miss Ruth Day, another member of the music staff, and a talented composer, has had a vocal trio and a piano solo accepted by Schirmer, New York music publisher.

Washington Seminary maintains the most modern facilities. It provides ideal living quarters with home care and influence for a limited number of pupils.

Registrations are still being received for the school's sixty-sixth year beginning on next Thursday. Write Washington Seminary, 1640 Peachtree street, or call Hemlock 0207 for complete information.

Display Reveals How Sterchi's Reupholsters Your Furniture

Convincing proof of the thorough and most efficient manner in which Sterchi's reupholstering department executes a reupholstering job on your furniture is offered in one of the big display windows of the furniture house on Whitehall street.

Every essential detail in completing a finished job of rebuilding your suite—making your furniture so attractive it is to all intents and purposes practically new—is shown in detail in the big window.

Go by Sterchi's — stop long enough to follow with your eye the little colored streamers that point out the materials used, that call attention to over 100 different patterns of fabrics for recovering—in fact, points out the 24 points in every detail which is essential, but you can read here some of what might be termed among the most important:

Your old covering is stripped and is completely discarded.

Frames are gone over—reglued, braced and tightened where necessary.

Exposed parts of woodwork and frames retouched and polished.

Webbing tightened, new webbing installed wherever it is needed.

Springs are thoroughly checked—reset and retied anew.

New springs installed to replace all broken or misshapen springs.

New moss or cotton added wherever needed. Feathers or down refluffed.

Flex-O-Lator construction used to insulate against "coil-feel."

High-grade sateen linings used on seat platform.

All new cotton felt encloses new spring cushion units.

All spring cushion units completely replaced. No guesswork.

At Sterchi's you can get a selection from more than 100 fine fabrics in patterns and colors to harmonize with any decorative scheme.

By using the services of Sterchi's reupholstering department every family can make their home more pleasant and livable. It's a simple, economical and easy way to make old, worn furniture look like new.

You may consult any Sterchi salesman or the company's decorative staff about having your furniture reupholstered. A member of the decorative department will call at your home with a complete selection of samples at no cost or obligation to you. Just phone Main 3100.

carried out in doing a fine reupholstering job for you.

You will then be convinced of the thorough, complete and satisfying job Sterchi's reupholstering department can and will do for you.

Sterchi's 24-point system is a most unique plan for reupholstering and rebuilding old furniture. This concern was the first, and is still the only, company in this section to use the complete 24-point system in its work of making your old furniture look and wear like new.

The system embraces custom tailoring and the exclusive "Flex-O-Lator" construction, in which a wire reinforced inner covering eliminates sagging by holding filling materials firmly in place.

Read some of the important points embraced in the 24-point system. Every point is really es-

No Bombers Are Lost In 24 Hours of Raids

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—American and British bombers pounded Belgian railway yards and dutch airfields in the grinding down of Axis communications and air bases in potential invasion areas of western Europe today after RAF Mosquitoes jabbed into the Rhur and Rhineland by night.

U. S. Eighth Air Force Marauders raked the freight yards in Ghent, Belgium, this morning, and a communique said "good results were observed."

Later in the day, RAF Bostons streaked across the lower end of the North sea and attacked air fields at Woensdrecht, a Netherlands sea coast town on the West Scheldt five miles north of the Belgian border. Both the Belgian and Netherlands attacks were covered and escorted by RAF, Dominion and Allied Spitfires.

In addition to the Mosquito raid into the Ruhr and Rhineland, British heavy bombers laid mines in enemy waters last night and naval craft operating with the fighter command damaged three enemy E-boats in the Channel.

Although the German air force sent up many fighters to challenge the Allied raiders, the Nazis failed to knock down a single bomber last night or today, it was announced.

During today's operations the Marauders destroyed three enemy fighters and escorting Spitfires shot down three more. Two Spitfires were lost today and one is missing from patrol last night.

The Ghent raid was the third good job in the five days this month by the heavily armed American B-26 mediums whose punches, obviously hurting the Germans, have caused heavy fighter opposition to be thrown against them.

Yesterday, for example, Spitfires covering Marauder raids on four railway yards shot down 19 enemy fighters. These were day fighters which the German air force never risks in large numbers unless forced to do so.

Ghent now has been hit twice by Marauders. The previous raid was against industrial targets on July 25.

The Air Ministry communique did not identify the Ruhr and Rhineland targets of the night raiders, but they were over the heavily industrial area where the German radio said "nuisance" forays had taken place.

Religion on Upgrade in Enemy Lands, Says Marietta Army Air Field Chaplain

The Constitution's Marietta News Bureau.

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 5.—"Religion in Europe was at a low ebb when I was traveling there about 15 years ago. However, there are indications there are still profound influences of the faith left in Germany today," Lieutenant Rudolf F. Joop, chaplain of the Marietta Army Air Field and a widely traveled man in civilian life, said today.

It was his privilege recently to be one of the few allowed to review a Nazi prison camp in this country and talk with the men there.

"I was amazed to find a surprisingly large church attendance among the prisoners. I believe that reveals that the mothers of Germany are still doing an excellent job in religious training," he said.

While talking to a sergeant, a German, in charge of 250 of his own men, the chaplain said he was impressed with the "mechanical and statutory obedience" of the men. The men boost their own morale by chanting and singing songs indicative of the new order in Germany.

Chaplain Joop discussed some of the duties expected of him at the base here.

"Twice a week I visit the men from our base in the Lawson General hospital. I conduct services each Sunday morning and provide Testaments for the men. Visiting prisoners in the guardhouse and personal interviews with the men in their barracks are some of my other duties.

"We have been holding services in one of the hangars. There is a combination recreation hall and chapel now under construction."

Born and educated in Illinois, the chaplain enlisted in June, 1943, and this is his first permanent base. Prior to his entrance in the service he had served as pastor of the First Evangelical church in Chicago for 10 years.

During the late 20's he traveled extensively in Europe, studying social and religious condition. Abroad he met such personalities as Lloyd George, Lady Astor and Chaplain G. E. S. Kennedy, a renowned chaplain of World War I.

Margaret Lewis To Receive Welcome as New Resident

● ● ● THE NAME of Margaret Lewis is a familiar one to Red Cross workers, not only in Atlanta, where she has often visited, but throughout the eastern area, where she is Red Cross field director for 16 large cities. When the eastern area headquarters are moved to Atlanta this fall, she will come here to make her home, and will be a most welcome acquisition.

Mrs. Lewis has been an active Red Cross worker since 1927, the year of one of the most disastrous of the Florida hurricanes. That year she was studying at Columbia University for her master's degree, and accompanied one of her friends as "moral support" to an interview for possible Red Cross work. Margaret was not interested in securing such a connection, as she was too busy with her studies. But after listening to the Red Cross representative tell of the magnificent work being done in Florida, she became so interested that she soon joined the organization.

YEOMAN MARGARET CARROLL.

Yeoman Second Class Carroll is the attractive guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Carroll, at their home on Tupelo street. She is stationed in the office of the chief of naval operation in Washington, D. C.

Since that time she has traveled far and wide, and has had a varied and interesting career. She was a tireless worker during the Kentucky flood in 1937, and in 1938 she was on duty along the Atlantic coast during the heavy storms that took such an alarming toll of life and property.

Mrs. Lewis is a native of Kansas, and was educated at the University of Kansas, after which she took her master's degree at Columbia, and is now completing courses that will qualify her for her Ph.D. She is particularly well suited for the type of work which she is doing, having majored in education and sociology.

When one hears of the many accomplishments of this brilliant young woman, it is only natural to picture her as a staid and serious student. But one meeting with her quickly proves that hers is a well-rounded personality, and she simply bubbles over with humor, enthusiasm, and friendliness. Her main relaxation is reading detective thrillers, which, she claims, help her to forget, temporarily at least, the pressure created by the seriousness of the present war emergency.

Mrs. Lewis feels that the Red Cross is a very vital expression of practical Christianity, and she is deeply impressed by the tremendous faith in Red Cross that is the keynote of the vast program of work done by millions of volunteers. At one time Mrs. Lewis contemplated serving in China as a missionary, so this line of unselfish activity is very near to her heart.

● ● ● SOMETHING new has been added at Georgia Tech—a ring dance. The Naval ROTC unit entertained at a dinner-dance Friday evening at the East Lake Country Club in honor of the graduating class. The ring dance was the added attraction. It follows the traditional ring dances at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis.

The entire Naval ROTC battalion attended the dance and each of the seniors and their dates danced through the garlanded arch, and the girls placed the class rings on their dates' finger.

The boys were not only having the thrill of getting their Tech class rings, but this signified that all of these boys will be commissioned as ensigns in the United States Naval Reserve upon their graduation in October.

The ranking student officers are Battalion Commander A. L. Lofton and Sub-Commander Eugene Broadwell. The chaperons included Captain J. V. Babcock, U. S. Navy, and Mrs. Babcock, and Commander George Griffin, U. S. N. R., and Mrs. Griffin.

● ● ● MEMBERS of the Atlanta Hospitality Committee filled a new role Friday evening. They acted as hostesses at a wedding reception at the officers' lounge which they maintain at the Georgian Terrace for the officers of the armed forces in this area.

You see, Lieutenat John Hobin, who hails from Stockton, Cal., could not obtain leave from his post at the ordnance base at Conley to go all the way across the continent to get married. So his pretty fiancee, Marion Bach, of Sonora, Cal., came to Atlanta, and the ceremony was performed here on Friday at the Sacred Heart church.

In order not to disappoint his bride, who, like all other brides, had cherished dreams of a wedding with attendants, a reception, a bride's cake, etc., Lieutenant Hobin arranged to include all of these important details. Colonel H. E. Sanderson Jr., who is popularly known to the Third Army Corps as "Sandy" Sanderson, gave Marion in marriage. And Lieutenant and Mrs. R. J. Heyman served as best man and matron of honor.

The officers' lounge was, of course, the perfect answer for the reception. And the bridegroom had only to suggest the fact to the hospitality committee, whose members immediately got busy. They decorated the place in the bridal motif of white and green. They arranged for a beautiful wedding cake and punch to be served with it. They even had one of their number, Laura Shallenberger, to play the wedding march to announce the arrival of the bridal pair.

Underwood--Barnett.

The marriage of Miss Betty Underwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ewing Underwood, of Marietta, to Corporal Leon LaFoy Barnett, of Glen Echo, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Barnett, took place Thursday evening at 8 p. m. at Sylvan Hills Methodist church, with Rev. Marvin Warwick reading the service in the presence of the immediate families and relatives.

The church was beautified with foliage plants and pedestal baskets of white gladioli.

The groom and his bride left for a honeymoon and on their return will visit the groom's parents before Corporal Barnett leaves for Massachusetts. Mrs. Barnett will return to the home of her parents where she will reside for the duration.

MRS. ARTHUR L. CANTRELL.

Mrs. Cantrell is the former Miss Martha Frances Padgett, of Atlanta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Padgett, 1691 Evans drive, S. W., whose marriage took place on August 12. The bride and groom were educated in the Atlanta public schools. Mr. Cantrell is serving with the United States Army.

Personals

Mrs. Jack Glenn and her sons, Jack Glenn Jr. and Alston Glenn, have returned to Atlanta after visiting relatives in Greenville, S. C.

Ensign and Mrs. Kam Manship, of Jacksonville, Fla., spent the weekend here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ledlie Conger, and were among visitors attending the Beavers-Alston marriage.

Staff Sergeant Otis J. White Jr., who is stationed with the headquarters, Air Support Department, Army Air Force School of Applied Tactics, in Orlando, Fla., spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otis J. White, on West Brookhaven drive. Sergeant White is a member of the personnel of this school and was recently promoted to his present rank. He enlisted in the Air Corps last year and received his basic training in Miami.

R. E. West is recovering from an operation at the Ponce de Leon Eye and Ear infirmary.

Miss Emmaline Belflower has returned from Birmingham, Ala., where she visited her aunt, Mrs. R. C. Meacham.

Mrs. D. G. Chestnut is convalescing at Piedmont hospital following an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Prince Webster are at High Hampton Inn, Cashiers, N. C., for a visit.

Bob Clark has returned to his home on Maple drive after a tour through Georgia and Florida.

Mrs. Wilmer Embree left recently to spend some time in San Jose, Cal.

Miss Nelle Harvey has returned from Miami, Fla., where she spent several weeks.

Mrs. P. C. Oliver has returned to Lanett, Ala., after a visit with her sister, Mrs. J. H. McGahee, in West End.

Jack Morris returns at an early date from a visit with relatives in Alabama.

Miss Frances Templin departs tomorrow for Cleveland, Tenn., where she will enter the freshman class at Bob Jones College, and expects to major in music.

Miss Ann McCurdy is recuperating from a recent operation at Emory University hospital. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius A. McCurdy, of Decatur.

Mrs. Sessoms Talks On Flower Shows.

The Peachtree Heights Garden Club met recently at the home of Mrs. Gordon Hiles on Springdale drive, with Mrs. H. K. Brannon co-hostess.

Mrs. Ralph Hill presided in the absence of Mrs. Harmon Johns, president. Mrs. John Sessoms gave a talk on "How to Arrange a Flower Show." The club made plans to hold a flower show at the home of Dr. and Mrs. George Lafitte on Nancy Creek road in September.

The next meeting will be held with Mr. Ed. R. Sumpter on Eureka drive.

MRS. ERNEST MEER.

Mrs. Meer is the former Miss Ethel Cwi, daughter of Mrs. Celia Cwi, of Atlanta and the late Dr. Aden Cwi. Her marriage to Corporal Ernest Meer, of Newark, N. J., took place on August 7.

Miss Truitt and Lt. Williams Will Be Married Saturday

The wedding plans of Miss Leila Florence Truitt, of College Park, and Lieutenant John A. Williams, are announced today. The engagement of Miss Truitt was announced yesterday by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Selvia Devanie Truitt.

The marriage will take place September 11 at 5:30 p. m. in the First Baptist church in College Park, with Rev. R. E. Rutland, of Lakeland, Fla., uncle of the bride-elect, officiating. The musical program will be presented by Mrs. N. W. Cathcart, pianist; Mrs. W. B. Willingham, organist, and Rev. John Tate, soloist.

Miss Truitt will be given in marriage by her father, and her only sister, Miss Elizabeth Truitt, will be maid of honor. The flower girls will be Misses Harriett Gunn and Dorothy Smith.

The groom-elect, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Hubert Williams, will have his father as best man. Ushers will be Ira A. Smith, James B. Dean, Ed S. Center, Jere A. Wells, Dr. K. E. Foster and Dr. M. T. Anderson.

Many parties are being given for the bride-elect. Today Mrs. F. L. Beers Sr. and Miss Neva Beers entertain Miss Truitt at a shower. Mrs. D. M. Berry and Miss Barbara Berry entertain tomorrow at a handkerchief shower. Mrs. Frank Webb and Mrs. Inez Webb Oliver entertain Thursday at a soft drink party.

Mrs. George Longino gives a tea on Wednesday for Miss Truitt. Mr. and Mrs. L. Hubert Williams entertain the wedding party on Friday, prior to the rehearsal. The first of the parties was an announcement reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Whelchel at their home in College Park.

Mrs. Ira Smith was hostess at a miscellaneous shower; Mrs. E. S. Center and Miss Laurens Center complimented the bride-elect at a linen shower, and Mrs. Mary Graf Williams entertained at a handkerchief shower.

The attractive bride-elect attended the University of Georgia, receiving a B. S. degree in home economics. She took an outstanding part in campus activities and is a member of Kappa Delta sorority. Since leaving the university, Miss Truitt has been with the Fulton county school system.

Lieutenant Williams attended Mercer University before entering the U. S. Army Air Corps. He received his commission at the Bombardier School at San Angelo, Texas, and is stationed at Tampa, Florida.

Girl Scouts Plan Training Institute

The Atlanta Girl Scout council announces a 16-hour training institute for new leaders of Brownie and Girl Scout troops to be held September 27, 28, 29, 30 and October 1. Adults interested in attending are asked to come by the Girl Scout office, fifth floor, Rich's, before September 21 and register for the course, as the group will be limited.

Two sessions will be held at the Capital City Club on Monday, September 27, and Thursday, September 30. The other three sessions will be held at Fernbank Forrest where outdoor instructions will be given.

Tau Phis Give Party.

A rummy party was given, recently for Tau Phi sorority members and friends at the home of Louise Jones on Park Lane.

Present were: Misses Louis Jones, Dot Harrison, Mary Carolyn Meadow, Dot Arnall, Louise Davis, Heneritta Jones, Marian Howard, and Catherine Holloway. Mesdames Louis White, Dixon Kerby, Mary Alice Bogle, Lady Mary Griffin, Jane Carmichael, Lois Harbrook and Betty Pitts.

Home Nursing Class Begins on Thursday

There will be a new class in Red Cross Home Nursing beginning on Thursday, at 7 p. m. at Red Cross headquarters, 848 Peachtree street. Anyone wishing to enroll is requested to call the Home Nursing Office, ATwood 1601.

The class is open to anyone desiring to learn the fundamental principles of caring for the sick in her own home. There are no educational requirements for enrollment, and no hours of service attached to the course. The Red Cross is giving the course to help women safeguard their own homes during this time when nursing aid is so scarce. Red Cross Home Nursing is not solely of interest to housewives, but to fathers, office workers, teachers and many others.

For Miss McGoogan.

Misses Virginia and Frances Templin recently entertained a group of young people at a miscellaneous shower at their home on Sherwood road, as a complimentary gesture to Miss Mary McGoogan, a bride-elect.

MRS. ROBERT L. PALAZOLA

Mrs. Palazola, prior to her recent marriage at the First Methodist church, was Miss Ella Wright, of Atlanta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Wright, of Tifton.

Private First Class Lewis T. Bradley and Mrs. Bradley announce the birth of a daughter, Linda Nell, on August 12. Mrs. Bradley is the former Miss Louise Bartlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Bartlett, of Atlanta. The baby's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Bradley, of Andrews, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs William W. Reade announce the birth of a son, William Woodthrop Jr., on September 1 at Piedmont hospital. Mrs. Reade is the former Miss Eugenia Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Walker. Mrs. John Moore Reade, of Athens, is the baby's paternal grandmother.

Seaman 2-C and Mrs. Paul Leonard Reynolds Jr. announce the birth of a son, Gary Paul, on August 25 at Crawford W. Long hospital. Mrs. Reynolds is the former Miss Nell Stubbs.

Warrant Officer and Mrs. Charles Donald Lowrie announce the birth of a daughter, Donna June, August 31, at Fort McPherson hospital. Mrs. Lowrie is the former Miss Sara Eunice Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smith, of Chipley. The baby's paternal grandmother is Mrs. Mildred Lowrie, Curtis, of Boston, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Armistead announce the birth of a daughter, Susan Heidt, on August 23 at Emory University hospital. The maternal grandparents are the late Major and Mrs. E. H. Heidt, of Atlanta, and the paternal grandparents are Mrs. R. B. Armistead, of Pembroke, Ky., and the late Mr. Armistead.

Miss Crawley's Marriage To Mr. Smallwood Told

MRS. JACK SMALLWOOD

Miss Frances Crawley, daughter of Lieutenant and Mrs. Charles Lamar Crawley, was married to Jack Smallwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoyt Smallwood, of Attapulgus, on August 29 at the home of the bride in West End.

The Reverend D. C. Starnes, pastor of the Park Street Methodist church, officiated.

The bridal couple was unattended and entered together. The bride wore a becoming pastel blue flannel, self-trimmed. Her accessories were navy blue, and her French felt hat was trimmed in a veil. Her flowers were gladioli.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Lieutenant and Mrs. Crawley, the former being on duty in England. Her sister is Miss Evelyn Crawley, and her brothers are Charles L. Crawley Jr., U. S. N., of Fort Worth, Texas, and Hugh Crawley, of Atlanta. Mrs. Crawley, the bride's mother, is the former Miss Alma Ruby Duke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Duke. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crawley, of Milner, are the bride's paternal grandparents.

Mrs. Smallwood was graduated from Girls' High school with honors. At the time of her marriage she was with the War Department.

Mr. Smallwood is the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoyt Smallwood, of Altapulgus, the latter being the former Miss Eula Lucile Means, of Barnesville, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Means. The groom's paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Smallwood, of Attapulgus. His brothers are W. A. Smallwood, of Atlanta; J. F. Smallwood, of Attapulgus, and T. F. Smallwood, U. S. A., of Fort Benning. He was graduated from Attapulgus High school and later attended Abraham Baldwin college at Tifton.

A reception followed the ceremony, and Misses Carolyn McBrayer and Marie Brabson served punch and Miss Evelyn Crawley kept the bride's book. A wedding cake centered the bride's table.

After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Attapulgus.

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

They're Off! Atlanta's 5,000 (or more) organized bowlers are pitching in, starting today, to buy and sell $10,000,000 in war bonds. It's a tremendous undertaking, no gainsaying that, but don't forget that in two previous drives they had no trouble at all in raising a million and three-quarters, and they were just doing their bit then. This time they're going to do their best.

I can't think of a finer group of athletic people than the Atlanta bowlers. Many of them work in organizations where 10 per cent is deducted weekly for the purchase of bonds. Many make modest wages. But the significant thing about the $1,700,000 raised in the other star-spangled drives is the fact that a lot of it represented the purchase of $25, $50 and $100 bonds.

It's the smaller investments that are really worthwhile.

Big money will always be assured. The banks and corporations have and will continue to invest literally billions in war bonds.

But that is not enough. The salaried worker of modest means must be reached.

John S. Blick, old man Blick, himself, reached a lot of the smaller purchasers in the other campaigns. And he was happier about that than getting a couple of hundred thousand from one individual.

It takes a bit of courage to undertake to raise $10,000,000, but it is as fine an undertaking as I can think of, for the reason that the bond money will go to build "Atlanta Bowler" bombers which may, in time, drop their explosive eggs on Berlin, Tokyo and points east.

The Constitution has sponsored all these drives. And before that there was a million-dollar football party featuring the four bowl games of 1943. We put that one on and were extremely gratified that there were hardly enough seats to accommodate the people who turned out. Admission was by bond.

In this latest bowling campaign, it is our hope that the next five weeks will see the greatest splurge of bond buying since the cruiser Atlanta drive.

Season's End The Crackers wind up their little ball of yarn at Birmingham today. In a lot of ways, the "cellar championship" involving Atlanta and the Barons has been interesting. It's so novel. Imagine our nine visiting for so long on the other side of the railroad tracks!

Just wait until next year, as they're saying—or were saying—in Flatbush.

I still can't get over the fact that Atlanta fans ignored the plight of the club and led the league in attendance. Neither can the other seven clubs. They wish they knew how it's done.

More fans are born than made. That's probably the reason, and Atlanta just happens to have many natural born fans, as the saying is.

A lot has been rubbed in on the Crackers this year. I even saw recently a sort of gloating bulletin from the league office pointing out Nashville had won 10 straight from Atlanta and, for the season, had lost only three or four. It was added Nashville won largely because of the ineptness of the local nine.

Well, it's a long worm that has no turning, I understand, and there's always another season. We'll see how helpful the Crackers are in 1944.

Gabe is one of the four chiefs of the Southern Football Officials' Association. . . . He was born in Atlanta and lived across the street from Muggsy Smith. . . . His real name's Gabe but they call him Gabriel because he used to play a hot trumpet. . . . The secretary and head of the booking office, Arthur Hutchens, is a great credit to officiating. . . . Arthur has taken all the raps in stride and will continue to do a great job. . . . Johnny Lynch, high ranking referee, and charming Mrs. Lynch, of New Orleans, were among those present at the splendid meeting of officials at the Ansley. . . . Attractive Mrs. Hutchens was here from Lake Wales, Fla. . . . When fans take exception to a decision on the football field this fall, they would do well to remember that the officials may be contributing their services. . . . The S. F. O. A. is going on, members agree, if there isn't a cent available for personal performance. . . . Can't beat that for loyalty to a game and a great organization. . . . One of the strong men of this group is Atlanta's George Gardner. . . . Bill Brady ran across Red Barron at Clayton, he writes, and Red told him, "I have watched these Boys' High players practice and I believe they will really have a good football team this year. . . . Shorty Doyal has really put them through some hectic practice and they stand up very well." . . . Brady added, "that makes good news for all of us Boys' High alumni." . . . Cornered Shorty Doyal at the officials' meeting, but he wasn't talking—about Boys' High. . . . A real prep year is shaping up around here. . . . Allen Shi will field a creditable team at Tech High. . . . And North Fulton is in the field as a real threat. . . . There were more players in uniform at Tech Saturday than there were officials in attendance for the annual meeting. . . . And there were plenty of officials on hand. . . . Society note: W. A. Alexander, in shorts, is no counter-attraction to, well, say Lana Turner. . . . But he makes a nifty figure, at that. . . . Bobby Troutman Jr., who has a job with the War Department in Washington, was a popular visitor recently. . . . He timed his visit with the appearance of his old friend, Morton Downey, the Irish nightingale. . . . Here's hoping the winter baseball meetings of the Southern League result in the return of Red McCutcheon as an umpire after several years' absence.

Men's Regional Softball Tourney Starts Tonight

Teams From Florida, Georgia, and Carolinas Will Compete at Marietta Park

The champion men's softball teams from Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina, will swing into action tonight at the Marietta city softball field in the first round of play in the Southeastern regional softball tournament. The winners of tonight's games will battle it out Tuesday night for the regional title and the right to enter the nationals at Detroit a week hence.

The Butner Furniture boys, of Greensboro, N. C., have been installed a slight favorite due to the fact that they will enter the tourney with a perfect record of 24 victories for the year thus far. Burrus Stoker, their pitching ace, was on the mound in each of these wins. He is slated to toe the rubber tonight at 7:30 p. m. against the powerful Fort Lauderdale Naval Air Base, the Florida representative. The Floridians are reported to have one of the fastest teams ever to come from the 'Gator state. The team will arrive by plane this morning.

Herbert Smarts' Smokies, the Georgia entry in the meet, will play in the nightcap on tonight's program, meeting the South Carolina champions.

Lefty Sheppard, the Smokies' ace flipper, will be the star attraction in this game. Possessing plenty of control for a lefthander, Sheppard also has 11 years of big-time tournament experience behind. He has participated in several national meets as well as two world tourneys. Unlike most star chunkers, he does not go in so much for strikeouts. Many of the fans who have seen Sheppard in action claim he is the best ever to perform here.

Captain R. H. Elliott, state softball commissioner, will be in charge of the meet. He will be assisted by Tommy Reagan, former G. M. A. baseketball ace.

THE SCHEDULE.

7:30 P. M.—North Carolina vs. Florida.

9:15 P. M.—Georgia vs. South Carolina.

Nelson, McSpaden Hold On To Lead

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Byron Nelson and Jug McSpaden combined for a best ball of 65 to win three holes from Lloyd Mangrum and Sam Byrd today and post a plus-10 count which increased their lead to six points at the 72-hole milestone of the Golden Valley Round Robin team matches.

The highlights of this morning round, however, was the successive eagle and ace registered by Private Chick Harbert, who is stationed at Lincoln, Neb. He reached the long 13th in two and dropped an 8-foot putt for a 3. On the 164-yard 14th his five-iron tee shot arched dead center to the pin, struck the shaft and clicked into the hole without touching the green. It was Harbert's first hole-in-one of his career.

VICTOR, VANQUISHED AND PRETTY LADY—Dave Mitchell, right, defeated Dr. Pierce Harris, left, in Saturday's final golf match at College Park, 2 and 1, and in doing so won the Bing Crosby Trophy, which is being presented by Mrs. Wesley Warren at the conclusion of the battle. Dr. Harris and Mitchell tied for medal honors in qualifying for the tourney, each with a 71, and had little trouble marching through to the finals.

Crackers Blanked Twice By Birmingham, 7-0, 4-0

Atlanta Held To Single Hit In Second Tilt; Cozart, Atkins Beaten

RICKWOOD FIELD, BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 5.—No cellar finish for the Barons for the second half. They sealed the Crackers from Atlanta in the cellar Sunday, plastering them over with their tenth and eleventh straight losses.

Jake Baker and Bob Malloy pitched shutouts, running the Crackers' string of coreless innings in Rickwood field to 25 innings. Baker won his game 7 to 0. Malloy won his 4 to 0 on a one-hit performance.

Labor Day will see the Barons and Crackers close out the series in a double-header, the first game starting at 6:15. Bob Ferguson and Tom Murray will try to run the Barons' winning streak to eight straight, giving the Barons sixth place in the final standing.

Baker had plenty of pitching to do, alowing nine hits. He was steady with men on bases and didn't issue a base on balls. Harry Hughes tried Cozart, Chitwood, Perrin and Todd. Perrin, a former Baron, was the only unscored on pitcher.

Only four Crackers got aboard the sacks off Malloy. Viers nicked him for the only hit. Walls and Viers reached first on errors and Hartsfield drew the only base on balls.

Kramer Defeats Pancho Segura

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Seaman Jack Kramer, the Los Angeles Coast Guardsman, found the weakness in Pancho Segura's tennis armor today and hammered away at it to eliminate the second-seeded player from Ecuador, 2-5, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3. The victory sent Kramer into tomorrow's final against Navy Lieutenant Joseph R. Hunt, who won his semi-final match from William Talbert Saturday.

Pauline Betz, of Los Angeles, retained her national women's tennis title today with a 6-3,, 5-7, 6-3 triumph over Louise Brough, of Beverly Hills, Cal., runner-up for the second successive year.

Gas Crisis Fails To Cow Tag Business

Georgians generally are running their automobiles and jalopies this year despite wars, gasoline and tire rationing and the inability to obtain some repairs parts, records in the office of J. A. Latimer, director of the motor vehicle division of the State Revenue Department, revealed yesterday.

Through September 1, this year, the department issued licenses for a total of 508,802 motor vehicles and collected a $2,133,086 in licenses. This compares with 545,048 licenses issued and $2,183,020 collected for the same period in 1942.

A total of 586,351 licenses were issued and $2,226,149 was collected for the entire year of 1941, before Pearl Harbor and before restrictions on fuel, tires and parts were clamped on consumers.

With another four months to go, Latimer believes that much of the slack between prewar and this year's figures may be absorbed. Only 36,246 fewer vehicles are licensed throughout the state through September than were licensed last year, and the state treasury has collected only $49,934.16 less money from such licenses.

Thus far this year 398,155 passenger car owners paid $1,097,781.65 for licenses, and $469,309 was paid for 83,397 "not-for-hire" trucks.

In fact Georgians are operating more than 95 per cent of the same number of vehicles this year as they did for the corresponding period last year, and the percentage may be raised considerably before the end of the year, Latimer and his aides believe.

Harvest Work Delays Tifton School Opening

Special to THE CONSTITUTION

TIFTON, Ga., Sep. 5.—The farmer and his importance in the country's program of aiding in the war effort holds first place in the attention of Tifton's public school board. Monday, September 13, has been announced as the opening date for Tifton schools by Principal G. O. Bailey, who explains that the delayed date is in keeping with the farmers' harvest activities.

In further accordance, the closing hour for the first two weeks will be 2 p. m. instead of the regular time of 3:20, in order that school children may reach home early to assist with the gathering of crops.

It stymies another of Adolf's sinister ambushes. If you look at the German technique of victory you will notice it includes death from the clouds, from beneath the waters, by massacre, by starvation, by poison, and by intrigue.

Its ally Japan is another student of the sneak attack. The only thing the master race has mastered is the psychology of the snake.

Both of them are going to be as finished as a fish head on a wharf. But we cannot pay them off in their own coin. That's a job for a counterfeiter.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—Your mind is likely to be racing today, filled with thoughts and ideas, which will not be well to put into practice immediately. However, this can be a splendid day for making plans.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—A feeling of restriction seems to surround you today, so do not try to force issues. By careful handling, old business, personal and business matters should be postponed if possible.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—This will be a better day to practice moderation in finances, especially financial matters with any sort of partners. Your optimism may not be a prominent feature of the day.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Get an early start today, for you should profit through a past mistake or error. You should feel an energy and resourcefulness that will be a great aid in business matters.

July 23-Aug. 22 (LEO)—Get down to making plans, for you should be able to plan accurately and have a better perspective in the values in your life. Therefore push personal interests.

Aug. 23-Sept. 22 (VIRGO)—Previous to 11 a. m. favors work that requires mental ability and matters related to your personal interests. Between 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. your emotions are apt to be too prominent and unreliable. The remainder of the day should prove fairly successful.

Sept. 23-Oct. 22 (LIBRA)—This is a good day to stick to routine and relax, for you are likely to have a feeling of restlessness and uncertainty which will not aid you in sustained work.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21 (SCORPIO)—This is a favorable day for working with progressive people and seeking benefits through new contracts, especially after 12 noon. However, shopping and artistic works may prove unfavorable.

Nov. 22-De.. 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Previous to 11:54 a. m. does not favor new and important matters. You may want to give snap judgment. After 11:54 a. m. follow ordinary and routine duties.

Dec. 22-Jan. 19 (CAPRICORN)—You will gain through working quietly and along conservative lines.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18 (AQUARIUS)—Previous to 8:14 a. m. avoid changes and postpone important matters. After 8:14 a. m. favors pushing personal interests.

Feb. 19-March 20 (PISCES)—Previous to 10:46 a. m. you can plan ahead for your vision and forethought should prove to your advantage. After 10:46 a. m. financial dealings with others can be expanded.

Ernie Pyle Reveals:

Life With Battalion On Sicily War Front

By ERNIE PYLE.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY.—(By Wireless)—One of the outfits with which I lived for a while on the Sicilian front was the 120th Engineers Battalion, attached to the 45th Division.

The bulk of the 120th hail from my adopted state of New Mexico. They are part of the old New Mexico outfit, most of which was lost on Bataan. It was good to get back to these slow-talking, wide and easy people of the desert, and good to speak of places like Las Cruces, Socorro, and Santa Rosa. It was good to find somebody who lives within sight of my own picket fence on the mesa.

The 120th is made up of Spanish-Americans, Indians, straight New Mexicans, and a smattering of men from the east. It is commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Lewis Frantz, who was superintendent of the Las Vegas, N. M., Light and Power Co., before entering service.

Colonel Frantz has now been in the Army for three years and has not been home during all that time. The 45th Division spent nearly two and a half years in training, and everybody almost went nuts thinking they'd never get overseas.

Self-Conscious Captain.

The strangest case of self-consciouness along that line that I've run onto is Captain Waldon Lowe, of Las Cruces. He had a chance to go home on furlough last Christmas, but didn't because he was ashamed to be seen at home after spending two years in the Army and still not getting out of the United States.

Now that he has leaped the overseas hurdle and feels qualified to go home he can't get there, of course. The executive officer of the unit is Major Jerry Hines, athletic director of the New Mexico Aggies for many years. Major Hines is expecting a football player in his family about mid-September. He says he hopes to get home in time to see him graduated from college.

Two of my Albuquerque hometowners are Captain James Bezemek, whose father is county treasurer there, and Captain Richard Strong.

Narrow Escape.

Captain Strong was company commander when I saw him, but since has been promoted to the battalion staff. He and his two sergeants had one of the narrowest escapes in the battalion when their jeep (which they'd abandoned for a magnificent ditch about two seconds before) got a direct hit from an "88" and blew all to pieces. The sergeants were Martin Quintana who used to be a machinist for the Santa Fe at Albuquerque, and John W. Trujillo, of Socorro.

A similar narrow escape happened to Captain Ben Billups, of Alamagordo, N. M., a few days later when his brand-new amphibious jeep which he'd had just one day, was hit and burned up. I would have been with him if I hadn't got sick and gone to the hospital that morning. It's a smart guy who knows just when to get sick.

The unit's losses from mines and shellfire have been moderately heavy. Colonel Frantz estimated that half of their work has been done under at least spasmodic shellfire, and at one time his engineers were eight and a half miles out ahead of the infantry.

Officers in Action.

The colonel himself is a big, drawling, typical southwesterner whose stamina amazes everybody, for he is no spring chicken. During the critical periods he would be on the go till 4 a. m., snatch a few hours' sleep on the ground and be off again at 7 a. m.

In action, the officers just flop down on the hard rocky ground like everybody else, but when they go into reserve they fix up bedrolls on smooth places under trees with blankets and mosquito nets. In fact, a few of the battalion officers right now are supporting the luxury of white silk sheets. They found a torn parachute and gave a Sicilian woman some canned food to cut it up and sew it into sheets for them.

A good big percentage of the battalion speaks Spanish, and occasionally you'll hear some of the officers talking Spanish among themselves, just to keep in practice, I suppose. This New Mexico bunch misses more than anything, I believe, the Spanish dishes they are accustomed to in that part of the country.

Their folks occasionally send them cans of chilli and peppers, and they have a minor feast. And Captain Pete Erwin, of Las Vegas and Santa Fe, has a quart of chicos or New Mexico dried corn, which he is saving for Christmas dinner.

11 Fliers Dead, Six Missing as Bombers Crash

DYERSBURG, Tenn., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Eleven airmen are dead, six are missing and nine are safe following crashes of three Flying Fortresses from the Dyersburg Army Air Base within the past 24 hours, the public relations officer said first reports indicated tonight.

The officer said indications are that six men died, two parachuted to safety and two are still missing in the crash of one of the big bombers this afternoon at Dresden, Tenn.

"That report is not final," he said.

At Rolla, Mo., where two Fortresses collided yesterday, five were killed and seven paarchuted to safety, the officer disclosed. Four members of the two crews are unaccounted for and parties are hunting for them.

The planes were on routine flights.

The officer said one of the men safe following the Missouri crash is Sergeant David E. Dollaher, of Caledonia, Mo. Names of other crewmen in the three planes were not divulged.

Nazis Say Landing In France Foiled

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The German radio asserted today without Allied confirmation that British Commandos had attempted a landing Friday night on the tiny island of Ushant, just off the westernmost point of the Atlantic coast of France.

Berlin declared the attack was beaten off after a single vessel had reached the beach.

The Berlin broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said a few raiders from one vessel reached the shore but fled, discarding helmets, hand grenades and rifle ammunition, when German coast guard units discovered them and opened fire.

Light British coastal forces fought a sharp battle with a large group of armed enemy minesweepers and heavily armed patrol vessels off the French coast early today, scoring a torpedo hit on one enemy patrol ship and severely damaging two more, the admiralty announced.

Exchange Club To Study Inflation

Dangers of inflation will be discussed by members of the Atlanta Exchange Club at its weekly luncheon at 12:15 p. m. tomorrow at the Robert Fulton hotel.

Other Exchange clubs throughout the nation will hold similar programs, the National Exchange Club having been selected by the OPA in Washington to initiate an educational program on inflation.

Members of the Atlanta club who will make short talks are Joe Asher, Hurd Crain, Lyons Joel and W. J. Hogan Jr., all past presidents. Louis Montag, of the regional OPA office here, also will speak.

Chinese Beat Off Jap Attack Near Hangchow

CHUNGKING, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The Chinese beat off enemy attacks in fighting around Hangchow, Japanese-occupied capital of Chekiang province, 400 miles southwest of Shanghai, and recaptured three towns, a Chinese communique said today.

Many casualties were inflicted and much booty taken, the communique said, and more than 1,000 fully trained Chinese puppet troops deserted to the side of Chiang Kai-shek.

Winant Cites Welcome Given Yanks in Sicily

SOUTHPORT, England, Sept. 5. (AP)—U. S. Ambassador John G. Winant told the Workers' Educational Association today that the welcome given Allied troops in Sicily proved that a generous enemy with good motives would be accepted with friendly enthusiasm.

Contrasting the Sicilian invasion with the Danish revolt against German occupation, he said that the Axis failure to establish itself in conquered territories was proof that evil motivation had no permanence.

Business, Government Now Allies, Says OPA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Officials of industry and government, frequently at odds in recent months, are now working hand in hand at the Office of Price Administration, the agency said today.

OPA reported that as a result of its efforts "to obtain a sound working relationship with business" 172 industry advisory committees have been formed and are now at work. The committees, it said, "are showing a determined effort to work for the stabilization of prices."

Penicillin Girl's Condition Is Better

Barbara Gallimore, six-year-old Atlanta child who is winning a fight for life with the aid of the rare drug penicillin, continued to improv , Grady hospital doctors said yesterday.

The child sat up and colored pictures in a book during the day, the doctors said, and her temperature had declined. The penicillin was brought to Atlanta by plane from New York, after The Constitution had requested its delivery.

At Macon, Ga., Anne Shirley Carter, 15, treated with penicillin flown there by an Army bomber was reported improving yesterday. The Macon News and the Danville (Va.) Register-Bee co-operated in obtaining the drug for the young girl, a former resident of Danville.

Congressional Postwar Study Set This Week

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—(AP)—An immediate and thorough congressional study of postwar industry became assured today, as talk of changes in the war profits renegotiation law turned into a debate on whether industry should be allowed to store up reserves for peacetime production.

The House Ways and Means Committee, at the call of Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, will meet Thursday—almost a week ahead of the reconvening of congress—to open public hearings on the whole question of renegotiation of war contracts to prevent excessive profits.

Inlaid with vast political potentialities, the study will cover three principal issues: (1) whether allowances should be made in the renegotiations for postwar reserves, (2) whether renegotiation is proper before or after deduction of taxes and (4) whether the law should be repealed outright.

C. E. Dooley, 61, Power Firm Employe, Dies

C. E. Dooley, 61, for 26 years an employe of the Georgia Power Company, died last night at the residence at Tallulah Lodge, Ga.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Survivors are his wife, two stepdaughters, Mrs. D. W. Stewart and Mrs. Frank Jacoway, of Atlanta; two stepsons, Vance Hunter, of Atlanta, and the Rev. Sterling Hunter, of Leesburg, Fla.; his mother, Mrs. J. V. Dooley, of Atlanta, and several brothers and sisters, including Miss Mae Dooley and Marshall Dooley, of Atlanta.

Prior to his affiliation with the power company at Tallulah Lodge, Dooley was manager of a business in Atlanta.

Vote for Civilians Abroad Is Urged

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Representative Sabath, Democrat, Illinois, came forward today with a proposal that American civilians abroad—he estimated there will be over 100,000 of them in foreign lands when election day rolls around—be allowed to vote in the 1944 presidential elections, as well as servicemen.

Sabath, chairman of the House Rules Committee and an administration stalwart, said a bill he has ready to permit the civilian foreign vote also seeks to make sure that soldiers and sailors, no matter where they are stationed, get their chance to vote.

As for the civilians:

"They're good American citizens. Many of them will be serving in places of danger. They are just as much entitled to vote as anyone else."

And, anticipating a posible opposition argument, he added: "They include both Republicans and Democrats."

Toll of Bombing Raids Is Basis of Sweepstakes

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Some reported London's famous pubs are reported operating sweepstakes—on the sly—on the number of bombers lost in daily air raids over Europe and the total enemy fighters shot down.

When the time for BBC newscasts rolls around everybody tops talking and takes a firmer grip on his beer mug. The radio is turned on full blast and there's not a murmur as the communiques are read. Then everyone tries to ask at once, "Who won the money?"

The winner buys drinks all around.

New York Traffic Near Normal On Holiday Eve

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—(AP)—The Labor Day holiday weekend caused scarcely a ripple in the normal flow of travel in the nation's largest city.

A slight increase in automobile traffic appeared attributable to the recent lifting of the pleasure driving ban as much as to the holiday.

Railroads reported relatively light patronage, with about the usual number of Sunday visitors, including many in uniform.

Yanks Raid Hongkong But Suffer No Loss

CHUNGKING, Sept. 5—(AP)—American Mitchell bombers and Warhawk fighters, heavily raiding the former British naval base at Hongkong, left many strong fires blazing Thursday in warehouses, gasoline storage tanks and other buildings, Lieutenant General Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters disclosed today.

One Japanese Zero was destroyed and two others probably were destroyed, while the Americans suffered no loss.

Programs Feature Labor Day

Harry Wismer will describe the men's singles final of the National Amateur tennis championships from WAGA at 2 p. m., this afternoon.

Parks Johnson and Warren Hull will take their "Vox Pop" quiz to Natick, Mass., tonight, to help launch the town's campaign to provide a $25 bank account for each of its men in war service. The broadcast will be heard at 7 p. m., from WGST.

Labor Day will be the theme of many programs on all stations today. Philip Murray, president of the CIO; William Green, president of the AFL, and Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission will participate in a special program entitled "Labor and the War," from WAGA at 2:15 p. m.

WGST has scheduled Albert Gossett, local labor leader, at 10 a. m.; Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, at 6:15 p. m., and a program arranged by the Georgia Federation of Labor, at 8 p. m.

Soldiers, led by Colonel Converse Lewis, of the Air Forces Western Technical Training Command, Kearns, Utah, will salute home front workers in a special program, from WATL at 10 a. m.

"Heroes of the United States Navy," a new series of programs developed under the supervision of the Navy Department, makes its debut from WAGA at 9:30 p. m. tonight.

Written from material whose authenticity has been checked by naval historians and experts, the series brings to life little known facts about naval heroes—what Admiral Dewey actually said to his officers at Manila, Admiral Farragut's inner thoughts at Mobile Bay, and stories of naval heroes still obscure to the average American.

SPARKS

Brian Donlevy and William Prince co-star in "Double Play," tonight's "Cavalcade" drama (WSB at 7 p. m.) . . . Warner Baxter and Ruth Warrick co-star in the radio version of "The Major and the Minor" (WGST at 9 p. m.) . . . Woody Herman and his "Spotlight Band" salute labor from Billy Mitchell Field (WAGA at 8:30 p. m.) . . . Nelson Eddy will be the guest of the "Great Artist Series" (WSB at 8 p. m.)

GOP Debates Lasting Union With Britain

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Stirred by a proposal of Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, for a permanent military alliance with Great Britain, Republican postwar advisory council members polished tonight preliminary drafts of a two-pronged declaration of foreign and domestic policy for their first formal meeting tomorrow.

The smiling Dewey cracked the otherwise placid surface of this "little convention" of the Republican party with a sweeping indorsement of a military agreement reportedly outlined by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at their recent Quebec conference.

The New York governor told a packed press conference he believed a permanent military alliance with Great Britain is almost certain after the war, adding that he would like to see Russia and China "in at the beginning" when the time comes to work out the peace.

Governor John W. Bricker, of Ohio, told a later press conference there ought to be "complete understanding" with Britain after the war on military and economic needs. He also favored an international organization in which Russia and China would join in preserving world peace.

Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio, scheduled to head the domestic policy group, told reporters it was his view that the Republicans should concentrate their attacks on the New Deal's management of domestic affairs.

LET'S HOLD HIM DOWN!

We Can If You Make and Keep the Home-Front Pledge!

Sure—it's true that some people are making more money today! But—the majority are not! Many people—more than half—are drawing the same pay, or less pay, than before the war began. Millions of Americans are living on set incomes—white collar workers, ministers, teachers, elderly people with insurance or pensions, families of our fighting men. They're barely able to make ends meet!

A rise in the cost of living means suffering and hardship for them.

Even those whose wages have increased would see the margin wiped out—swallowed up by higher living costs.

This would result in the breakdown of American morale, not alone of the laborer, not alone of the farmer, but of the soldiers who are fighting this war, and the families and friends of every one of them!

Prices must be held down—and they will be!

Your government has taken two important steps to eliminate increases in food prices and to assure everyone a fair share of food. Essential foods have been rationed. Top legal prices have been established on practically every essential food item in the family market basket. This top legal price plan for food, together with the OPA Rent Control Program, now provides you with visible top legal prices for items totaling nearly 60% of the entire cost of living.

You have been given the means to keep down your cost of living. Now it's up to you to do it!

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

You can make the Home Front Pledge. Make it today—and make it work every day thereafter. We can lose this fight and suffer a major defeat on the home front, unless you—unless all who make the pledge—look upon it as an individual responsibility.

Watch for the published lists of top legal prices for your community. Clip them out of your newspaper and carry them with you when you shop. Of course, you know your food dealer must post his selling prices. And it's your responsibility to check this against the top legal prices on the official list. Call your retailer's attention to any errors. If he is unwilling to correct them, report the violation to the Price Panel of your War Price and Rationing Board (in writing). Your name will never be used without your permission.

The honest retailer is anxious to cooperate with the government price control program: for it's his protection against the dishonest dealer.

MAKE THIS PLEDGE

I Will Pay No More Than Top Legal Prices

I Will Accept No Rationed Goods Without Giving Up Ration Stamps

It's up to you—and to every housewife in America—to "hold the line"—to hold it until our boys come back—to jobs, homes, and opportunity for all—to a sound economic system for the future.
